

FLYER AND GIRL KILLED AS PLANE FALLS AND BURNS ON COUNTY ROAD

Sergt. R. H. Bowers, National Guard and Miss Elizabeth Eslinger die in crash at Florissant and Natural Bridge.

CRAFT HITS TREE
THEN LIGHT POLE

Circling Low When Accident Occurred, Presumably to Attract Attention of Friends Whom Passenger Had Just Visited.

Staff Sergeant Raymond H. Bowers, thirty-fifth division Air Corps, National Guard, and Miss Elizabeth Eslinger, a student at Harris Teachers' College, were killed yesterday when a monoplane crashed at Florissant and Natural Bridge, Normandy. The wreckage caught fire, charring the bodies.

Witnesses who received a private flight license last Tuesday, were flying a plane owned by the Lambert Flying Club, an organization of enlisted members of the National Guard air unit.

Witnesses said the ship circled the road junction, a populated section, several times shortly before 1 p.m. The pilot executed a vertical bank close to the Kirkwood-Parkway street car line, and apparently failed to notice as he passed the tree. A wing tip grazed the tree, shearing off branches, and the plane struck a pole carrying high tension electric wires, breaking the pole. The plane was torn from the ship and the car burst into flames on striking the ground in a cleared space between the car tracks and Natural Bridge road. Examination later disclosed the fuel tank apparently burst when the plane struck the pole.

Flames kept off rescuers. The crash occurred in view of persons on the highway. A crowd quickly gathered, but this was impossible to reach Miss Eslinger and Bowers because of the flames.

An eyewitness said the occupants made an ineffectual effort to crawl from the wreckage, but this was thought to be erroneous as the plane had burned until only the blackened metal frame was left.

At the Eslinger home it was stated that Miss Eslinger had driven to Normandy to visit a friend, Miss Madeline Kohl, daughter of Frank Kohl, vice president of the Federal Trust Co. Not finding Miss Kohl at home, Miss Eslinger told members of her friend's family that she would drive to Lambert-St. Louis Field to see Bowers, whom she had known for several years.

"If we do go up we will fly over your house," she remarked, according to members of the Kohl family.

It is presumed that Bowers circled low over the Kohl home in the vicinity of the road junction, as a result of Miss Eslinger's promise to the family.

Used Old Ryan Plane.

Miss Eslinger, 22 years old, was the daughter of Dr. M. B. Eslinger, a dentist. She was to have completed her senior year at the University College in June.

Bowers, 23, was employed as a chauffeur for the Board of Public Health. He resided at 6550 Thomsen avenue with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman G. Bowers.

The plane, an obsolete Ryan model, formerly belonged to "Carmichael," a wealthy flying enthusiast and an officer in the National Guard air unit, who gave it to the flying club last year. The club, which had been fitted with a new engine, was approved by the Department of Commerce as airworthy but was not licensed for commercial purposes. Experts at the time agreed that the engine appeared to be functioning properly when Bowers took off a few minutes before the crash occurred.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN LUNCHEON GUEST OF BRIAND IN PARIS

Crowds Give Film Comedian An Ovation on His Arrival From Venice.

PARIS, March 23.—Charlie Chaplin was the guest today of Aristide Briand at a small informal luncheon at the Foreign Office. Others present were Lord Tyrrell, the British Ambassador; Minister of Justice Leon Berard, who decorated Chaplin in 1921 with the purple rosette making him an officer of the academy; Count de Sels, Secretary-General of the Foreign Ministry; Philippe Berthelot and Madame Berthelot, Princess Marie, Tristan Bernard, dramatist, and Guy Smith, Chaplin's representative.

Chaplin received an ovation when he arrived here from Venice yesterday. A large crowd gathered at the hotel station where there were shouts of "Long live Charlie!" as the film star smiled and bowed his way to his automobile.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED IN SUIT OVER OLD COURTHOUSE SITE

Judge Peary Holds Chouteau and Lucas Petition Does Not State Cause for Action.

A demurrer to one of the four suits filed by heirs of Auguste Chouteau and John B. C. Lucas, to regain title to the site of the old Courthouse, was sustained by Circuit Judge Peary today, on the ground that the petition did not state a cause of action.

On Feb. 14 Circuit Judge Hartman overruled demurrers filed by the city in the three cases before him. Judge Peary, in his ruling, pointed out the site was given to the city to be used for a courthouse "forever."

"But," said the Judge, "what public charity ever existed forever in one form? One hundred years would seem to be long enough to satisfy the intent of the creator of this trust for use as a courthouse so far as any rights of the heirs are concerned, at least, a court of equity in my humble judgment, would not be justified in declaring a forfeiture."

HOMICIDE CHARGE AGAINST FIREMAN IN DEATH OF GIRL

Eugene Seyler Accused at Inquest Into Killing of Frances Arnold, 6, Saturday.

VICTIM IN SAFETY ZONE AWAITING CAR

Father of Child Injured — Hospital Doctors Say Driver, Who Failed to Stop, Had Been Drinking

Eugene Seyler, driver of a Fire Department maintenance truck, was charged with homicide by a coroner's jury today at an inquest in the death of Frances Maxine Arnold, 6 years old, who was killed Saturday night while standing with her parents in a safety zone at Grand boulevard and Easton avenues. The verdict recited that Seyler had swerved into the safety zone and had driven on.

Seyler, who was arrested an hour after the accident, was identified by George Haley, a Negro, 1514 Wash street, who said he was standing in the safety zone and attempted to jump on the truck after the girl and her father, Frank Arnold, 1526 Franklin avenue, were run down. Haley said the truck swerved from the center of the street into the safety zone. The driver then increased speed, turning off the red and green lights at the side of the car, the witness said.

Tosettes Truck Increased Speed.

Ely Harris, a taxi driver, testified that he was standing within 10 feet of the truck, and shouted to the driver, "why don't you stop?" Harris testified that he heard the driver, who had slowed down to about 10 miles an hour, shift gears as the machine picked up speed.

Several other witnesses, including Mrs. Arnold, testified that the machine bore the emblem of the Fire Department and was painted red. Policemen, who arrested Seyler at an engine house at Twelfth and Spruce streets, told the jury that they detected the odor of alcohol on his breath. One officer expressed the opinion that Seyler was drunk. Although it was not brought out at the inquest, the police report states that City Hospital physicians, who examined Seyler, said he had been drinking.

According to the police report, Seyler admitted at the hospital that he had "a couple of bottles of beer" with another fireman at a saloon near Easton and Taylor avenues while returning from The Arena where he had been stationed at the Boy Scout Circus.

Driver Changes His Story.

Seyler at first denied having been on Easton avenue, stating that he drove to Twelfth and Spruce by way of Chouteau avenue. Later he said he had gone east in Page boulevard, and amended this to say "it may have been Easton."

Examination of the truck disclosed that a headlight had been twisted and one fender recently cleaned in contrast to the remainder of the vehicle, which was splattered with rain and mud.

Seyler, who is 40 years old and lives at 3529A Pennsylvania avenue, will be required to give a bond of $10,000 pending action by the grand jury. City Chief Atty. General, who announced that Seyler had been suspended from the department. Seyler identified himself to the coroner, but, on advice of counsel, did not testify.

Arnold, who was knocked down by the truck, also was injured. His daughter died of a crushed skull.

Last of the Wendels With Poodle For Which She Kept $800,000 Backyard

MISS ELLA VON E. WENDEL and TOBEY.

MISS WENDEL, 80 years old, the last of six daughters, who inherited the vast fortune of John Gottlieb Wendel, died recently in New York in the Fifth avenue mansion that never knew modern conveniences. For years Miss Ella ventured forth only to give her dog an airing in the high-walled backyard used for no other purpose.

BULK OF WENDEL ESTATE TO CHARITY

Sale of Realty Valued at $100,000,000 Ordered in Miss Ella's Will.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Sale of realty holdings approximating $100,000,000 is ordered in the will of Miss Ella Wendel, last of the famous old New York family.

After certain specific bequests, the bulk of the estate is to be divided into 200 parts, which are to go in varying proportions to hospitals, church mission societies and other charities.

Coinciding with the filing of the will, George Flint Warren Jr., attorney for the executors, issued a statement noting "the more prominent gifts, other than those to the residuary legatees."

The Wendel family home at Fifth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, is bequeathed to Drew Theological Seminary "as a memorial to the decedent's father, the late John D. Wendel."

Five beneficiaries receive 35 shares each of the residuary estate. They are: Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.; St. Christopher's Home for Children, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; New York Society for the Relief of Ruptured and Crippled; Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the Nanking Theological Seminary at Nanking, China; and the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital, "exclusively for the flower hospital."

The remaining 25 shares are given in varying numbers to the Presbyterian Hospital, New York; American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc.; Northfield schools, East Northfield, Mass.; Methodist Episcopal Church Home, New York; National Kindergarten Association and other institutions.

The Wendel country house, "stock and furniture," together with other property, is bequeathed to Isabel G. Koss. A $50,000 trust fund is provided for the Methodist Episcopal Church at Irvington, N. Y., where the country house is.

Miss Wendel's personal maid, Annie Garvin, is bequeathed $25,000. Other servants receive $2000. Warren would give no estimate of the value of the real estate. There was no mention in the will of Miss Wendel's poodle, "Toby," who had a long line of that of that name. The dog, which is old, probably will be cared for by friends.

The will is dated July 20, 1923, and is followed by codicils dated as late as June 13, 1929. The codicils, according to the attorney, "are of small significance."

The living executors named are Charles G. Koss, George Stanley Shirk and Isabel G. Koss.

DUDE RANCH FOREMAN TRIES TO END LIFE

Marriage of Joel Lewis to St. Louis Woman Disclosed by Shooting.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Darragh, daughter of Nelson R. Darragh, and Joel Lewis, foreman of a dude ranch near Birney, Mont., was disclosed today, when Lewis seriously wounded himself in what authorities described as an attempt to end his life.

He is in Sheridan County Memorial Hospital at Sheridan, Wyo., suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, inflicted with a .45-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Lewis has made her home at the ranch on which her husband is employed since their marriage in August, 1929. Her father is president of F. C. Taylor Fur Co. and of the Voice of St. Louis, Inc., which operates radio station KMOX.

At the Darragh home, 5323 Ridge avenue, Nelson R. Darragh Jr. said today that his sister met her husband through summer vacation parties at the family home on the ranch on which he is employed. Lewis, a well-known "dude wrangler," is also a rodeo performer. He is 28 years old.

INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS MARCH 20 OFF $31,369,975

Treasury Report Shows $44,105,314 as Compared With $75,475,289 Same Day Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Income tax collections continued their downward swing today when the Treasury statement for March 20 showed that $44,105,314 was tabulated that day as collected, as compared with $75,475,289 on the same day of last March.

Collections for March 20 made the total for the month $233,229,195 as compared with $490,325,715 for the same period of last March and a total of $1,454,660,320 for the fiscal year as compared with $1,712,962,857 for the same period.

Collections for the month now appear certain to drop nearly $200,000,000 below those of last March.

GOV. ROOSEVELT MAILS CHARGES TO MAYOR WALKER

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23.—A copy of the charges preferred by the City Affairs Committee against James J. Walker of New York City was mailed to the Mayor at Palm Springs, Cal., today, by Gov. Roosevelt. The Governor wrote that he would like to receive an answer from the Mayor as soon as possible. Gov. Roosevelt understands that Mayor Walker plans to return to New York in about 10 days.

RADICAL GROUPS DEMAND EXTRA SESSION FOR AID

Headed by Norman Thomas, Socialist, They Tell Senator Watson Greater Relief Is Imperative.

URGENT IMMEDIATE GOVERNMENT LOAN

Advocate Treasury Match Dollar for Dollar That of Local Agencies — G. O. P. Leader Opposes 'Dole'

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Two opposing political and economic philosophies clashed dramatically today in a dialogue between Norman Thomas of New York, Socialist candidate for the presidency in 1928, and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, standpat leader of the Republican party in the Senate.

The meeting of the two, in Watson's office, was the outgrowth of a conference held this morning by a dozen representatives of militant radical organizations, under the chairmanship of Benjamin C. Marsh of the People's Lobby.

Assembled for the purpose of demanding an extra session of Congress to provide unemployment relief, the group sent word to Watson that they would like to see him.

Watson Against Extra Session.

"Let them to come on down," opposed to an extra session, but I'll be glad to talk it over."

The party filed into Watson's office and ranged themselves in a semicircle before him. Thomas was the spokesman. He said the Senator made an interesting contrast—Watson the bluff, backslapping politician, confessing himself a "standpat conservative" and proud of it; Thomas, the eager pleader for a redistribution of wealth.

Thomas said that even under the most optimistic interpretation of present trends, it was impossible to predict more than a moderate recovery of business in the next few months. He said that local relief funds were fast being exhausted. In New York City alone, he said, the monthly wage loss from unemployment was at least $60,000,000, as against a total of only $2,000,000 available from all forms of public and private charity. He gave figures indicating similar conditions in other cities.

"Dole to Dividend Receivers."

Referring to the tax reduction granted by Congress on incomes of 1929, Thomas said that a "dole" had been given to dividend receivers. He believed it was now up to Congress to require these beneficiaries to share with the workers, and the only way this could be done was through an equitable system of income taxes.

"The situation has reached a point," said Thomas, "where the elected representatives of the people should be brought into session. The sheer mass of human misery in the United States at the present time demands that something be done beyond what has been done, or what we can reasonably expect the cities alone to do."

"Have you in mind what we call a 'dole'?" interrupted Watson.

"I have exactly that in mind," replied Thomas. What he advocated, he said, was an immediate governmental loan for relief purposes, this loan to be repaid from income and inheritance taxes. He urged that the Treasury match dollar for dollar the money spent by local relief agencies.

Facing a Bitter Necessity.

"We face a bitter necessity," said Thomas. "Anything is better than the starvation of men and women and the underfeeding of children."

Watson questioned the wisdom of taking money for relief from the Federal Treasury. He said that this country had a million and half persons who were always unemployed and unemployable, and that these persons, under a dole system, would fasten themselves permanently on the Treasury. He said "violently opposed" to the dole. If there were no other way out, he would be willing to surrender his convictions, but he did not believe that this point had been reached. He said the dole reduced England to desperate straits.

"I agree with you," said Watson, "that there will be no recrudescence of prosperous conditions in this country for some time to come. For one thing, our psychology is bad; for another, we are caught in a world depression."

Proposing of nothing that had been suggested, Watson here launched upon an anti-League of Nations discourse. He would oppose any League of Nations.

FARM BOARD ANNOUNCEMENT SENDS WHEAT TO LOWEST PRICE LEVEL IN 36 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—WHEAT prices on the Chicago market dropped to the lowest since 1895 today, sagging as much as 11 cents a bushel on 1931 crop options.

The crash followed announcement by the Farm Board, that it would not attempt to maintain prices by stabilization operations beyond the month of May, when the 1930 crop passes from dealing.

Action on the market was contrary to the expressed opinion of George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, that the news constituted a bullish factor in the market. July wheat, representing contracts on the new crop unprotected by stabilization buying, dropped 2 1/2 cents to 53 1/2 cents, the lowest in 36 years. June delivery, in which there is little trading, dropped 11 cents.

ROBBERS KILLED AFTER HOLDUP OF EDNA, KAN., BANK

Two Unidentified Men Shot to Death by World War Veteran as They Flee With Loot.

By the Associated Press.

EDNA, Kan., March 23.—Two unidentified robbers who robbed the Edna First National Bank of $1397 here today were slain in an exchange of shots with Dr. A. T. Hyde, World War veteran, as they sought to escape with their loot.

Hyde, a dentist, stood in the doorway of a building across the street from the bank and opened fire with a shotgun as the robbers were entering their automobile. One of the men was killed instantly. The other returned the fire.

Hyde continued to fire until the second robber fell dead. The dentist was uninjured.

C. E. Kallenberger, cashier, was approached at noon by two men, one of them about 30 years of age, dressed in blue serge and red hair; the other, about 22, and roughly dressed. They asked for change. As he was tendered, the older robber shouted: "Hands up."

Kallenberger, J. S. Holten, vice president, and W. L. Conneway, president, were forced to enter the vault. They said the robber who covered them with his pistol pulled back his coat, displayed a knife and asked them to join him in a drink of whisky.

Meanwhile the other robber took all the cash in sight. While the robbery was in progress, C. T. Cunningham, another bank employee, started to enter by a rear door. He withdrew hastily and gave the alarm.

Dr. Hyde, who served in France with the Eighty-ninth Division, after the bank was robbed last July he had armed himself in expectation of another robbery. He was notified by telephone of the robbery while he was in progress.

The small roadster driven by the robbers bore no automobile license. The motor numbers had been defaced. A note book containing many names was found in the pockets of one of the slain men, and officers were seeking to identify them through these names.

Robbers Take $9000 in Tennessee Bank Holdup.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 23.—Two masked men held up the teller of the Centennial Park branch of the American National Bank today and stole $9000.

The robbers gained entrance to the bank during the night. When the janitor appeared they held him captive until J. W. Stone, the teller, arrived. At the point of pistols, Stone was forced to open the vault. The robbers took as much cash as they could find and fled in an automobile.

PRESIDENT IS WARMLY WELCOMED IN PORTO RICO

Ovation for Mr. Hoover at Ponce, and Along 90-Mile Drive to San Juan Pelted With Confetti, Guns Roar, Bells Ring.

ISLANDERS ASPIRE TO U. S. STATEHOOD

Executive Praises Their Self-Reliance—Goes to Governor's Palace — Departs Tomorrow for the Virgin Islands.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 23.—President Hoover entered the Governor's palace at San Juan shortly after 1 o'clock today at the end of a hearty ovation along the 90-mile auto drive across the island from Ponce, where he had landed this morning from the battleship Arizona.

The demonstration in San Juan was the greatest of the trip. Thousands lined the streets and their cheers were continuous for seven miles into the city. The President, his face flushed, bowed and waved happily. Even after he had entered the palace, guns boomed, convent bells rang, and the uproar was tremendous.

The final 10 blocks to the Ponce de Leon Palace led through a narrow European-like street, down which people in balconies overhead poured a steady rain of confetti and streamer paper. The President was covered with the litter when he entered the palace.

Palace Grounds Jammed.

The crowd jamming the palace grounds cheered until the President, Gov. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt appeared on the balcony. Then a great roar arose and lasted for several minutes. After the acknowledgment, the President retired but the shouting continued until the Governor made a speech assuring that Mr. Hoover was greatly pleased and impressed with Porto Rico and sympathetic with its people.

En route to San Juan the President reviewed the army detachment at Henry Barracks, joining Secretary of War Patrick Hurley in reading the officers while the President saluted was fired. In San Juan the President's car halted at an asylum for orphan girls, where an embroidered centerpiece was presented to him. Convent girls gave flowers to him.

On the way here, the President rode with Gov. Roosevelt in an open touring car and paused briefly in each village. Flag-waving school children met him everywhere and cheered as he greeted them.

Arrival at Ponce.

When Mr. Hoover and his party arrived at Ponce this morning for his 35-hour visit to the island, Gov. Roosevelt and other island officials and political leaders met him with 23 automobiles for the trip here.

When the President entered Ponce he was enthusiastically cheered by a large crowd, but there was some hissing at the later official welcome there.

The President lunched and rested at Government House after the sunrise drive over the beautiful rolling country to San Juan. Conferences were arranged for this afternoon with insular spokesmen, and a dinner is on the program for tonight.

Mr. Hoover is the second President of the United States to visit Porto Rico. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, father of the present Governor of the island, having been here in 1898.

The President will remain on the island until tomorrow afternoon, when he will depart for the Virgin Islands, the other stop on his combination vacation and official trip.

Double Holiday for Island.

The Arizona anchored outside Ponce harbor at 6 a. m., and began immediately to debark the President's party by motor boat to the quay.

The President was the last to leave the Arizona, following the large company of newspaper men, photographers and others, including Secretaries Hurley and Wilbur, aboard.

Ponce was decorated with flags, bunting and banners crying welcome—in Spanish, "Bienvenido." A large triumphal arch had been erected across the entrance to the city.

3 ON PAROLE BOARD CALLED TO INQUIRE AT JOLIET PRISONS

Chairman, First on Stand, Blames Legislature Which Passed Ten-to-Life Robbery Law.

ESCAPE PLOT KNOWN 3 WEEKS IN ADVANCE

Representative Asks Why Men Weren't Warned Before Three Were Slain — Guard Captain Assailed.

By the Associated Press.
JOLIET, Ill., March 23.—While quiet continued at both the new and old State prisons here, three members of the State Parole and Pardon Board were called today to testify before the Legislative Committee investigating rioting by convicts.

Charged by prisoners with being responsible for the riot which broke out at the State Penitentiary, the three men are to be asked about the manner of questioning convicts and relatives of convicts who petitioned for clemency. They are Chairman W. C. Jones, the Rev. R. Keene Ryan and Thomas H. Cannon.

Jones was the first member of the Parole Board to take the stand. He defended himself and his board, shifting the blame to the General Assembly for passing its old "10 to life" law against robbery with a gun.

Says Hands Are Tied.
"Our hands are tied," Jones told the committee. "There are some 600 men in prison, sent here while that act was in force. It is an extremely unfortunate situation."

"Although the act was repealed, there is no legal way of relieving the situation," he said.

"When the Legislature attempted to pass Senate Bill 628, to modify the effects of the old law, the Supreme Court held that there was no relief possible by legislation."

"Convicts sent here on terms of from 10 to life must serve the minimum of 10 years, the court held. When we were first appointed we held a conference here with Warden Hill and learned of the worst the law had caused."

Assaults Newspaper Story.
From some time a newspaper story appeared that we intended recommending conditional pardons for the 647 gunmen then imprisoned under the law. I don't know who inspired the story. It was made out of whole cloth.

"Immediately the press of the State charged the board with planning to have the penitentiary delivered, collapse of criminal justice was predicted. A Chicago Judge was quoted to the effect that if the Parole Board turned the gunmen loose upon society the Governor and the board must bear the responsibility."

Restoration of certain privileges and better feeding seemed to have such a soothing effect on the prisoners that plans were made to withdraw the remaining Illinois National Guardsmen, who have been on duty at the new Stateville prison.

Stormy Sunday Session.
Yesterday's session of the legislative investigation was filled with stormy moments. Two convicts characterized Warden Henry C. Hill and Capt. George Erickson as efficient, but bitterly criticized the practices of Capt. A. Davenport.

Representative Michael I. Igoe, Chicago, Democratic member of the investigating committee, repeatedly hammered at testimony of Erickson when the latter told of shooting three escaping convicts Feb. 22. Igoe declared the "slaughter was cruel and needless."

Erickson was in charge of the two men who fired the fatal shots. Legislators brought out, through questioning Erickson, that prison authorities knew three weeks in advance that the convicts planned to escape.

After Erickson declared only two rifles were used to kill the escaping three men, Igoe asked how two rifles could fire 35 or 40 bullets. "Well, I don't know," replied Erickson.

"Isn't it a fact that you knew about the escape?" "Yes," Erickson admitted.

"And you knew who the men were who were planning it, didn't you?" "Yes."

"Then wouldn't it have been closer to the dictates of humanity to have warned them that if they tried to escape they would be killed, instead of waiting for them to clear the walls, then shooting them down?" "Well, if we warned them again and again, they would just postpone the escape until later."

From Harvey Rogers, Chicago convict, came word that inmate hatred centered on one man, Capt. Davenport. The convicts believe, he testified, that Davenport "put on the spot" the three men killed Washington's birthday.

"What's more," he said, "Davenport and his stool pigeons could give lessons even to Al Capone."

Abolition Park to mark the occasion. A pennant strung across the street said: "God bless the President. The city was enjoying a double holiday, the emancipation fete, which fell yesterday, having been carried over until the week day."

School children serenaded the visitors with songs as they passed through Police streets, where the President's penitents praising his appointments of American officials of the Porto Rican Government.

Mayor's Welcoming Speech.
In his address of welcome, Mayor Pango, old President Hoover that his administration had produced more legislation for solving the island's problems than any since the beginning of American sovereignty in Porto Rico. This fact, he said, had served to renew the interest of Porto Ricans and to revive their hopes that Porto Rico might be incorporated on a basis of constitutional equality as a self-governing state in the Union.

"Your arrival this morning," he said, "strengthens the ties of mutual understanding and reciprocal affection between this territory and the continental United States."

He predicted that the incorporation of Porto Rico into the United States would "exemplify the possibility of a Pan-American commonwealth under the Stars and Stripes."

Anglo-Saxon and Latin civilizations shall blend together in the furtherance of a common destiny."

Replying to the address of welcome, the President praised the self-reliance of the Porto Rican people, and said: "This visit gives me an opportunity to learn your problems and to view your progress. Your Governor is the son of the American President who began the work of helping Porto Rico. I hope my visit will mean closer co-operation between Porto Rico and the mainland."

The reception by the municipality of Ponce was at the city hall, several miles from the President's landing place. Mr. Hoover was given an elaborate embroidered banquet cloth on which had been worked designs of the favorite flowers of all of the American Presidents who have held office since Porto Rico became part of the United States. The poppy, designated by President Hoover as his favorite flower, was included in the design.

Up to the last minute a small, active group of Nationalists continued their opposition to the entertainment program, urging all Porto Ricans, "for their own dignity," not to participate. One hand bill, signed by Luis Vergne Ortiz, president of the Nationalist party of San Juan, was distributed in the cars of the reception committee. It criticized President Hoover as leader of the National Republican party, which it described as "one Italian, plutocratic, antisocialist, and opposed to the interests of workers."

A Mother's Petition.
A sobbing mother struggled to reach President Hoover during the halt at the Town of Cayey, on his drive from Ponce to San Juan. She bore a petition for the commutation of an 11-year sentence her son is serving at Joliet (Ill.) prison. Secret service men took the document from her. She was identified as Zenaida de Monserrate. The petition will be referred to the Department of Justice.

The mother, who was escorted away by friends, who said her son, Angel Manuel, 21, pleaded guilty to murder in Chicago.

Abolition groups at San Juan plan to urge upon the President that Porto Rico be included in all Federal legislation or executive measures applicable to the United States, such as unemployment and other welfare problems. Drafted by the Free Federation of Labor

ABERNATHY'S FATHER NOT TO BE PROSECUTED

Orthwein Kidnaping Case Dropped After Negro Gets 15-Year Sentence.

The kidnaping charge against Pearl Abernathy, Negro real estate dealer, whose son pleaded guilty Friday of kidnaping 13-year-old Adolphus Busch Orthwein and robbing the Orthwein chauffeur, was dismissed by Associate Prosecuting Attorney Noble when the case was called for trial at Clayton today.

Prosecuting Attorney Caslen said that investigation by his office and developments in the trial of the son, Charles V. Abernathy, indicated he would not be warranted in proceeding with the prosecution of the father. He was asked if his statement meant that evidence against the father was lacking, and replied that he preferred not to alter his original expression.

Charles Abernathy, was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary on the robbery charge and to 10 years on the kidnaping charge, when he pleaded guilty to both after the State had presented its evidence in the robbery case. His sentence is to run concurrently so that his maximum term will be 15 years.

Evidence was heard only in the robbery case, in which the young Abernathy alone was defendant, and there was no testimony involving the father. In the kidnaping case, father and son were jointly charged, but no testimony was presented in view of the plea of guilty by the son.

The father, who lives at 4223 Enright avenue, negotiated with Percy J. Orthwein, father of the kidnaped boy who was held captive for 20 hours in the home of the younger Abernathy, 715 Bismark avenue, Webster Groves. Pearl Abernathy said at that time that he approached Orthwein "as father to father," seeking to right the wrong that his son had done. It was said that no ransom was paid for the boy's return.

The kidnaping occurred in front of the Orthwein home in Huntleigh Village last New Year's eve as the family chauffeur drove the boy to the home of his grandfather, August A. Busch. The younger Abernathy was arrested a week later in Kansas City and confessed.

His sentences, with time off for good behavior, will permit his release under supervision after he has served seven-twelfths of the longer term, or eight years and nine months. However, he may apply for parole after serving one-third of the longer sentence, or five years.

Of Porto Rico, a memorial has been drawn up expressing this desire. It also thanks Mr. Hoover for recent congressional acts creating a labor department for Porto Rico and extending Federal educational, vocational and rehabilitation statutes to the island, and for appropriations for construction of schools and roads.

Calling attention to the Spanish heritage of the people of the island, the statement says that nevertheless commercial and industrial life is fast attaining the characteristics of the American people.

What the Chaplain Said.
Sun-burned and apparently rested by his sea voyage, Mr. Hoover yesterday attended church services on the deck of the Arizona. His party occupied the first row at the services in the shadow of the big guns on the aft deck of the cruiser. Mr. Hoover joined in four hymns and in the prayers under a torrid sun. Spray came on deck, covering many of the officers and sailors. Chaplain Neyman, in his sermon, said: "Do not let the little things like you. Don't be afraid of the big things." After the service, Mr. Hoover shook hands with the chaplain.

Mr. Hoover talked for 10 minutes yesterday afternoon in a two-way radio-telephone conversation with his son Herbert Jr. and his 6-year-old granddaughter, Peggy Ann, at Asheville, N. C., 1400 miles away. "Hello, granddaddy," Peggy Ann said, "it's snowing here."

RADICAL GROUPS DEMAND EXTRA SESSION FOR AID

pose our going into the League, he said, so long as there was breath in his body.

He begged the delegation to note that eight states of the Union paid one-half of the Federal taxes. He wondered how long it would be possible to tax the people of these states without breaking down their ability to pay.

"I realize that there is inequality in the distribution of wealth," he conceded. "But just how far can we impose new burdens on industry in the interest of collectivism is a problem that has not yet been solved."

Congress Paralyzes Capital.
"If business is to recover," continued Watson, "it will not be while Congress is in session. That is the solemn truth. Our present way of conducting Congress, with our investigations and meddling, keeps business at a standstill. Capital will not enter a field."

Thomas briefly answered Watson's points. With regard to England, he said that Watson had put the cart before the horse. In other words, the dole did not produce economic emergency in England, but the emergency made the dole necessary. He believed that an orderly system of adequate relief was better than a haphazard and inadequate system. Men were made unemployed, he continued, by being unemployed. He urged that the Federal Government act immediately and not wait until a desperate level had been reached.

"VIKING" SURVIVORS TAKEN FROM ISLAND

A. G. Penrod, One of Missing Photographers, Formerly Lived in St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 23.—The rescue steamer Sagona, with 118 survivors of the sealer Viking explosion disaster on board, today forced its way through almost impenetrable ice floes off Horse Island on the return voyage to this port. Other vessels, with nine survivors on board, were doing likewise.

While the ships started out of the ice fields, the ocean-going tug Foundation Franklin arrived here with the body of Patrick Bartlett, one of the disaster victims.

Robert S. Fogg, Concord (N. H.) pilot who flew north with a camera man in quest of pictures of the disaster, damaged his machine landing on Horse Island but neither Fogg nor his companion was injured. The skis on which the plane was mounted broke when they came into contact with the ice floes. Fogg and his companion, Cameron Wright of the Paramount News, arrived over Horse Island this morning—the first news photographers to reach the place where the Viking was destroyed by an explosion a week ago. They made pictures of the ships that rescued more than 100 survivors and pictures of the islands. They said they were unable to make repairs.

Another picture airplane expedition, that of C. F. Kent, who was forced down at Pictou, N. S., while en route from Moncton, was continued today.

Meanwhile, Bert Balchen, flyer, with his companions, Randy Enlow and Merion Cooper, prepared for the next leg of their flight at Corner Brook. The Balchen party, organized by Dr. Lewis Friswell, father of Yarny Friswell, one of the Americans who on board the Viking, will search for Friswell, A. G. Penrod, another American, and 24 others who have not been found.

Friswell and Penrod were motion picture men, sent here for him and the sealing fleet's activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Shaw McKean of Boston, the latter a sister of Harry Sargent, explorer, the other American on board the Viking, arrived here today. They came to greet Sargent, a survivor, when he reaches port. He was not seriously injured.

Alexander G. Penrod, one of the missing, is a former St. Louisan, and operated a photographic studio at Sarah street and St. Louis avenue until 1912 when he left to enter moving picture work. His brother-in-law, Henry W. Guthrie, a shoe worker, lives on a farm near Valley Park. Penrod visited him there about seven years ago.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 23.—The burned body of a man, at first believed to be that of John M. Smith, missing manufacturer and politician, will be exhumed for a second time tomorrow in an effort to fix its identity.

Officials today expressed the belief that if they can identify the body they might obtain some clue to the mystery surrounding Smith's disappearance Feb. 3.

Both of Perry, who were arrested Sunday on charges of illegal transportation of alcohol, were questioned about the Smith case. They were said to have been in Denison the night of Feb. 3, when the body was found in Smith's wrecked truck near there. Officials refused to discuss their conclusion after the questioning.

Mrs. Smith has made a second plea for her husband to come home, giving Sheriff C. A. Kne a note which she asked him to make public.

NEW YORK, March 23.—While no special significance is attached in banking circles to Montagu Norman's first trip to America since 1925, it is regarded as likely the Governor of the Bank of England will visit Washington, as well as confer with officials of the Federal Reserve Bank in New York. He is due here Friday aboard the Berengaria, with Dr. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard University, who was attached to the Bank of England last year as statistical adviser.

Longworth Receives Group.
The delegation later called on Speaker Longworth and received the promise that he, too, would lay their recommendation before the President.

The conference decided to address a letter to the President calling for an extra session of Congress "to appropriate adequate funds to meet the actual physical requirements of the millions of families who have been impoverished by the drought and by unemployment and who are not being cared for adequately by any agency."

It voted also to ask Progressive Senators to stump the country for an extra session and to request Senators and Congressmen to send daily or weekly statements to the President on conditions in their districts.

Among those attending the main session besides Montagu Norman, were J. Nevins Sayre, Secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; Marx Lewis of the National Socialist party; Miss Dorothy Deizer, Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom; William F. Cochran, a Baltimore millionaire, who is interested in progressive movements; Dr. John H. Gray of the American University, Washington, and Gilson Gardner of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The conference was held in the committee room of Senator Frazier (Rep.), North Dakota, at the Capitol.

BOY IN WRECKED HOUSE FOUND AFTER 20 HOURS

Finally Rescued When Workman Stumbles Over Foot at 2021 Shenandoah.

Norman, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. August Schirmer, 1908 Victor street, was discovered pinned under debris in the basement of a wrecked house at 2021 Shenandoah avenue yesterday after he had been imprisoned nearly 20 hours.

Discovery of the boy, who had screamed in vain for aid, was made by a workman who stepped on his plaster covered foot as he was searching for old iron. Norman, who had been too weak to call for help for several hours, let out a lusty howl as the man was about to pass on. It took but a few minutes to extricate him.

Taken to city hospital he was found to have several fractured ribs and to be suffering from shock and exposure. He was in a semi-delirious condition, but managed to tell his mother about his adventure.

The first thing he said upon being lifted from the basement was "Hello, Dad, where's Mamma?"

"Norman told me he was walking on top of the foundation about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon," Mrs. Schirmer said, "when he fell in, dropping about seven feet and dislodging bricks and plaster which partially covered him. A big slab of plaster, about 7 feet by 5 feet, protected him, though it held him above because of the big slab. The plaster slab probably saved his life."

The boy, who is in the sixth grade at the Fremont School, called for help until exhausted. Then he "nerved" most of the night that he might die," his mother said, since he had given up hope of being rescued.

BURNED BODY FOUND IN TRUCK TO BE EXHUMED SECOND TIME

Perry (La.) Officials Believe Identification Might Give Clue to Missing Manufacturer.

TRAPPED AFTER FALL IN WRECKED HOUSE

NORMAN SCHIRMER.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., March 23.—Ted Pizzino, who, with Joe Bonmarito and Angelo Livechi, is on trial for the assassination of Gerald E. Buckley, July 23, was designated in court today as one of three men who ran from the LaSalle Hotel, pistols in hand, a few seconds after the slaying.

The identification was made by Francis E. Weinert, a convict in the Michigan State prison, who stepped from the stand and placed his hand on the defendant's shoulder. Weinert said he was entering the hotel through the Adelaide street door when the three men ran out.

Katy to Build Big Elevator.
The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Line today announced letting of a contract for construction of a new 1,000,000-bushel grain elevator at Kansas City to the James Stewart Corporation of Chicago. The exact amount was not made public but the elevator was expected to cost approximately $250,000. The new elevator, which is to be of reinforced concrete construction, will bring the Katy's storage capacity at Kansas City to 3,225,000 bushels and is built in anticipation of a large wheat crop in the Southwest territory served by the railroad.

She was rolling about 25 degrees in a nice easy roll showing that the result of the relining experiment was correct and that it is seaworthy.

MEMBER OF WILKINS' CREW LOST OVERBOARD

W. J. Grimmer, Quartermaster of Nautilus Drowned in New York Harbor.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 23.—W. J. Grimmer, quartermaster of Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar ship Nautilus, was lost overboard yesterday in the outer harbor as the craft was on the way to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for christening. He was married three weeks ago.

Report of the tragedy by Commander Sloan Danenhower, skipper of the tug, was merely that Grimmer had been lost, and that a thorough search had been made. Members of the crew said the cable, or deck rail, broke under his weight and that he fell into the sea from the after deck. The cable was intact when the Nautilus was berthed last night.

Grimmer, 27 years old, was formerly a radio operator in the Navy. Until his engagement as quartermaster for the project, he had been a radio operator in the Navy. He was married three weeks ago.

The Nautilus, formerly the tug Nautilus, was built by the Navy. It was a small, fast, and maneuverable vessel, designed for polar exploration. It was built by the Navy and was used by the Navy for many years.

HERO OF 'THE FRONT PAGE' DIES

Hilding Johnson, Chicago Reporter, Succumbs to Stomach Trouble.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 23.—Hilding Johnson, for 20 years Criminal Courts reporter for the Herald and Examiner and the newspaper man whose personality furnished the basis for "The Front Page," died early today.

He had been ill a week with hemorrhages of the stomach, but refused to leave his beat. He had promised his physician that he would "drop in at a hospital" today. He became critically ill last night, however, and never recovered. Johnson was 40 years old. He was described as "knowing everybody worth knowing" in the political and criminal world of Chicago. Ben Hecht and Charles McArthur, writing "The Front Page," quite frankly used Johnson as their protagonist. Johnson, himself, always referred to it as "that play those guys wrote about me." He is survived by his widow and a son, Louis Hilding, 8.

7 CHILDREN DIE
IN BURNING HOME;
3 SERIOUSLY HURT

Family Trapped in New Hampshire House by Early Morning Fire—Parents and 3 Others Escape

By the Associated Press.

HOLDERSNESS, N. H., March 23.—Seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Avery died in their back roads home yesterday in a fire which destroyed the building in less than a quarter of an hour. The dead: Sperle, 20 years old; George, 14; Harry, 10; Alfred, 9; Milton, 5; Daisy, 3; and Joseph, 3 months.

The parents and six other children, three severely burned, escaped. The burned children are John, 15; Frank, 17; and Thomas, 16. All were taken to a hospital in Plymouth, where it was believed they would recover.

Sperle, returning home early yesterday, discovered smoke and roused the others. All except the 6-month-old Joseph had huddled together in the living room when some one inadvertently opened a door to the rear of the house. Instantly flames carried by the draft, shot through, enveloping the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery, two small sons and a daughter, Violet, 8, escaped through the small door leading to the road. The others were overcome by the flames with the exception of three who were able to fight their way free.

A few minutes later the upper floor gave way, carrying with it the crib in which was the baby.

Neighbors, roused by the flames, summoned the single motor truck which is Plymouth's only fire equipment. But by the time it had arrived, there was nothing that could be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery had one of the largest families in the State. They have had nearly 20 children, several of whom are dead while others have homes of their own.

The cause of the blaze could not be determined.

Avery, an odd jobs man, had been ill for the past six months. The house was a two-story, wooden frame building in dilapidated condition.

SELF DENIAL DAY TO AID
JOBLESS SET IN BALTIMORE

Contributions for Relief Fund to Be Received in Boxes in Streets.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., March 23.—Baltimore's relief agencies caring for the families of unemployed persons have set apart next Friday as self denial day and contributions from citizens will be received in ballot boxes to be set up by police at street intersections in the business area. Persons who are employed will be asked to deny themselves something to aid in the fight against suffering among the unfortunate.

The Citizens' Emergency Relief Committee a short time ago opened a campaign to raise $200,000 to carry on the work that began several months ago. Last week, however, it was shown $500,000 would be needed to carry out the committee's program. About 6,000 families are receiving aid from the Police Department and other agencies. A $15,000 contribution from Harry C. Black, was made and the Baltimore Sun papers turned over to the committee $7330 representing the gross receipts for the sale of yesterday's papers. A $10,000 check was received from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

boats Picked Up by Tugs.

By the Associated Press.
GLASGOW, Scotland, March 23.—The Canadian Pacific Liner Montclare, which went aground on a reef off the Island of Cambrai, in the fifth of Clyde Saturday night, was refloated at 12:20 p. m. yesterday and proceeded toward Liverpool.

All the 200 passengers from the ship, who had taken to lifeboats after the vessel crashed on to the reef in a thick fog, were picked up by tugs. They included 20 mothers and their children. The crew remained aboard.

KANSAS CITY GAMBLING RAIDS

120 Persons, Equipment and $3000
In Cash Taken.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—In raids of downtown gambling halls, police yesterday arrested more than 100 frequenters and 20 gamekeepers, seized dice, cards and other equipment, and found about $2000 in cash.

Several patrol wagons were used to convey prisoners to police headquarters. One wagon broke down under its load.

GARDNER MOTOR COMPANY PLANS TO QUIT BUSINESS

Company That Began as Buggy Factory 49 Years Ago Finds Competition of Large Firms Too Severe.

The Gardner family of St. Louis, which 49 years ago began the manufacture of buggies here, developing one of the largest businesses of that time in the country, and turned to making automobiles in 1915, has decided to go out of business because of the difficulty a small independent firm has in competing with the big manufacturers.

It also plans to quit making airplanes. Russell E. Gardner Jr. and Fred W. Gardner, brothers, and heads of the Gardner Motor Co., are active partners in the brokerage firm of Reinhold & Gardner.

At a stockholders' meeting in New York, April 7, four proposals will be submitted, including a recommendation to abandon the automobile business and sell the assets. One proposition, which will require a two-thirds majority, will call for reducing the par value of the 300,000 shares of stock from $5 to $1 a share, or from $1,500,000 to $300,000. This would enable the company to pay cash dividends out of a surplus of $500,000 to $700,000 which is now part of the capital.

Another proposal will be to distribute the approximately $5,000 shares of Detroit Aircraft Corporation stock held by the company on the basis of one share for each 10 of Gardner stock. The Gardner brothers do not wish to assume the responsibility for deciding whether to sell or keep this security, which was obtained in exchange for an 80 per cent interest in the Parks Aircraft Co., which formerly made airplanes at Park Airport. The fourth proposal will be to authorize a cash distribution of 25 cents a share on Gardner stock.

The company's charter was broadened several years ago, permitting it to enter various enterprises, including aviation and investment trusts. Its factory at Main and Rutger streets is being used now in part as a warehouse. The stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange is held by more than 4000 owners. The Gardner family has a substantial interest, but owns considerably less than half of the stock. The latest quotation was $1.75 a share, compared with a maximum of more than $25 in 1920. An additional 200,000 shares authorized in 1929 was not issued.

Russell E. Gardner, who now resides in New Orleans, founded the Banner Bug Co. in 1882. The business thrived until the coming of the automobile. In 1915 he sold the remnants of that enterprise, which under new owners went into bankruptcy in 1928. The elder Gardner formed the Chevrolet Motor Co. of St. Louis in 1915 and manufactured the early Chevrolet car under a territorial license from the Durant interests. This business was sold to the General Motors Corporation in 1918.

The Gardner company, established the following year, started with a four-cylinder car and brought out its eight-cylinder model in 1924. The last of probably more than 100,000 Gardners was made early this year and the stock is exhausted.

Russell Gardner Jr., who succeeded his father as president in 1925, said today that the big motor car manufacturers controlled many sources of parts supplies and were able through volume of business to make competition for a small producer difficult. The company, however, made money, he said, until about 1927 or 1928 and its latest annual deficit since then was $450,000.

In 1929 the company planned to manufacture the Ruxton front-drive car, also a low-priced machine to be distributed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. mail order house, but these plans were dropped. The company had its own front-drive car, as a sample, in the January, 1930, automobile show, but production was not begun because of unfavorable conditions. Last year the engineering and sales staffs were consolidated with those of the old Moon Motor Car Co. to decrease costs.

THREE NEGROES FOUND SHOT
Two Men and Woman Hit by Bullets Tell Contradictory Stories.
Two Negro men were found by police suffering from bullet wounds last night in the neighborhood of the home of Mrs. Carrie Hudson, 25 years old, a Negro, who was shot in the right shoulder and abdomen.

She told police she was wounded when she attempted to prevent Ulysses Jamerson, 3111 Morgan street, and Alvin Weatherstone, janitor at the Avalon Hotel, 239 North Taylor avenue, from shooting each other. Each man accused the other of shooting him. Jamerson was wounded in the stomach and Weatherstone in the side. All were taken to City Hospital No. 1.

CITY'S LOBBYIST

HENRY W. BLODGETT.

CITY LOBBYIST SAYS HE REPORTED ON CAR BILL

Members of Estimate Board Declare They Were Not Informed of Measure.

Henry W. Blodgett, legislative agent at Jefferson City for the St.
Louis city government, says he told the city Board of Estimate and Apportionment about the "terminable permit" street railway franchise bill now pending in the State Senate.

Mayor Miller, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, who compose the Board of Estimate, say Blodgett did not tell them about the measure. City Counselor Muench, whom Blodgett quoted as saying that the bill was an enabling act, and "might be a handy thing to have around some time," denied that he discussed the bill, or that he knew anything about it before the Post-Dispatch, last week called attention to its provisions.

Last Friday the Board of Estimate went on record against the terminable permit bill, on the ground that a special committee of the Board of Aldermen is endeavoring to reach a solution of transportation problems, but that the pending State bill would be of no service to the Aldermen. It was announced that Blodgett would be instructed to oppose the measure on behalf of the city.

Blodgett's Unusual Position.
The conflicting statements have called attention to the unusual extra-legal capacity in which Blodgett is employed by the city. The present legislative session is the fifth in succession at which Blodgett has appeared as the representative of the city Board of Estimate.

His pay is $5000 for the legislative session, plus expenses, and he has at this session an assistant, Wilton D. Chapman, who is paid $1500 and expenses. Combined expenses paid to Blodgett and Chapman up to March 1 were about $1100.

The position of legislative agent for the city does not exist by any charter or ordinance provision. The salary and expense payments are made with part of a "miscellaneous" appropriation item of $30,- 000 which appears in the city's annual budget in these words:

Payment of special taxes for making streets, sidewalks, etc., city's share of cost not otherwise provided for, and other miscellaneous purposes. Including necessary traveling expenses when authorized by Comptroller, and including settlement of minor damages caused by city vehicles. $20,000.

Nolte Defends Plan.
Comptroller Nolte has been the chief advocate of the plan of employing a legislative agent, and has been strongly in favor of retaining Blodgett in the work. Blodgett demurred at taking the job this year. Nolte says, but Nolte persuaded him to do so and arranged for him to have an assistant.

"I figure that Blodgett has saved the city hundreds of thousands of dollars by his work at Jefferson City," Comptroller Nolte said today. "He is excellently adapted for this work, having been a member of the State Senate, and having both familiarity with the legislative procedure and an acquaintance with members such as few other men have."

Blodgett, the Comptroller said, has used his legislative knowledge and his personal acquaintance in making effective opposition to several measures which, if enacted, would have added large amounts to the city's annual budget requirements. Among these were measures affecting the pay of policemen and firemen and the city's share of the police pension fund.

How He Divides Time.
Under his arrangement with the Board of Estimate, Blodgett spends the first four days of each legislative week at the capital, returning to St. Louis on Fridays to report to the board and to receive instructions. He sometimes makes his report to the Board of Estimate direct, at its Friday meetings, and sometimes deals with the board through its secretary, C. L. Cunningham of the Comptroller's office.

In the 1929 session, Senator William Maffitt Bates of St. Louis denounced the employment of a lobbyist by the city, declaring that the six St. Louis members of the State Senate were capable of looking after the city's interests in that body.
The Comptroller, then and previously, defended the employing of Blodgett, and praised him as a "good mixer," who had been able to give the city valuable service in the peculiar requirements of his position.

Blodgett's employment began in the Kiel administration, when he was sent to the 1923 session of the Legislature. Under the Miller administration, Mayor Miller and President Neun have concurred with Nolte as to his retention. Before Blodgett undertook the work, the city employed Henry A. Rosskopf, now a Circuit Judge, at one legislative session.

TWO MORE NEGROES HELD IN BANK HOLDUP

Young Cabaret Entertainers Confess Parts in Taylor-Easton Robbery.

Clarence Davidson and Floyd Dandridge, 19-year-old Negro cabaret entertainers, joined the Taylor brothers, Zelather and Frank, at the City Jail today, having confessed participation in the $4800
holdup of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., 4474 Easton avenue, Feb. 19.
Arrested at Clarksdale, Miss., for speeding in an automobile they had bought with part of the stolen money, Davidson and Dandridge were brought to St. Louis by detectives. Like the Taylors, they arrived at Police Headquarters flash-ily dressed, each wearing a gray tailored suit, a gray fedora hat and a green shirt and necktie.
The day of the robbery, Zelather
Taylor was caught at the Booker Washington Hotel and Frank Taylor was overtaken at Centralia, Ill.
Davidson and Dandridge, who jumped from a window at the Booker Washington when detectives knocked on their door, said they went to Memphis, Tenn., by train, then bought the automobile in which they continued their journey southward.

Davidson and Dandridge had $577 in cash in their pockets, bringing the total of recovered loot to $2544.

CHURCH BODIES ASK AMERICA TO SEEK WORLD DISARMAMENT

NEW YORK, March 22.—An appeal to the American people to insist on world disarmament at the Geneva conference in 1932 is made in a statement by the Church Peace Union and the American Council of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches.
"Thoughtful people," says the statement, "are beginning to realize that armaments are futile to prevent war or to protect the people relying upon them; that they have prevented no wars in history and are not preventing war fears today;
that they keep men thinking of war and constitute a perpetual incentive to it."

Immediate plans are urged for a demonstration of public opinion
"that will demand the conference shall not be dominated by politicians who will jealously bargain for national advantage, or by military and naval experts who deem war inevitable—but by delegates who fairly represent the peace-loving people of the world and who will not disregard their mandates."

Recalling the Kellogg-Briand pact renounced war as an instrument of national policy, the agencies assert, "to pledge ourselves to go to war and then continue to prepare for war is a legal and moral inconsistency."

DEAF MUTE DRIVER BLAMED IN KILLING

Inquest Verdict Holds Him Criminally Careless in Running Down Woman, 65.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned in the case of Mrs. Nellie McNeerney, 65 years old, a widow, who died at City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered last Wednesday night when struck by an automobile at St. Louis avenue and Twenty-fifth street.

The verdict was directed against David Aut, a deaf mute, 3049 North Twenty-second street, driving the machine of another deaf mute, who accompanied him. Witnesses testified the car was traveling at 25 miles an hour, and that the street was well lighted. Aut probably will be discharged on his $5000 bond in the Court of Criminal Correction because of insufficient evidence on which to return an indictment. Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon says.

Mrs. Sarah Joyce, a widow, 2550
Montgomery street, who was with Mrs. McNeerney, also was injured.

Two Men and Baby Hurt in Crash
at Robin and Harney.

Three persons were injured in a collision between two automobiles at Robin and Harney avenues yesterday.

They are: Joseph Petruso, 15, 5337 Wren avenue, concussion of the brain; Peter Friedella, 2, 4370 Thrush avenue, cuts and bruises, and Joseph Emma, 4112 West
Florissant avenue, cuts and bruises.
Nicholas Viviano, 1204 North Seventh street, suffered a fractured leg when struck last night at seventh and Biddle streets by a machine, the driver of which failed to stop. A license number furnished police had been issued to a resident of Kansas City, Mo.

William Traubig, a soldier at Scott Field, and Miss Alice Helm of Mascoutah, were injured yesterday when an automobile driven by Traubig skidded on the wet pavement of Highway No. 15, near Mas-couth, and overturned. Traubig suffered a fractured skull, and was transferred from Scott Field to the Post Hospital at Jefferson Bar-nacka. Miss Helm is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, with fractured ribs.

9000 NEGRO VOTES CAMPAIGN FACTOR IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Nearly One-Fourth of Total Record Registration for Municipal Election on April 7.

The campaign for the election of a Mayor and four commissioners in East St. Louis is in full swing, with prominent citizens taking part and addressing mass meetings. The election will be held Tuesday, April 7.

That the public at large is keenly aroused is shown in the registration figures that break all previous records. In the primary of 1927, there were 23,295 voters registered and 17,234 votes cast, the totals exceeding any previous primary.

In the last primary, Feb. 17, there were 31,690 voters registered and 20,682 votes cast, an increase of 2448 votes cast.

Since the primary and up to March 9, the last day of registration, 6745 additional voters registered, promising the largest vote for a municipal election in the history of the city. The present registration, however, will be reduced somewhat by a canvass to be made next week.

Negro Registration of 9000.
Half of the 6745 voters who have registered since the primary are Negroes, Thomas P. Coonan, chief clerk of the Board of Election Commissioners, estimates, making the total Negro registration about 9000, or nearly a fourth of the total.

Throughout the campaign there has been marked activity in the Negro precincts. Because the election law under the commission of government forbids employment of paid precinct workers, candidates and managers are non-committal on the amount of money each spent in the primary, but estimate a $40,000 total, half of it in Negro precincts.

A compilation of the primary returns in 20 precincts of solid Negro or majority Negro vote shows that Mayor Frank Doyle received 3176 votes and M. L. Harris 1257. On primary day as many as 40 workers were in evidence in some of these precincts. The white precincts had from 10 to 20 workers. An average precinct has about 300 voters.

The law under the commission of government is designed to eliminate party lines, prohibits a candidate from treating, from promising to appoint any person to an office, and forbids any agreement "to perform any service in the interest of any candidate" for money or promise of money. The statute holds both giver and recipient guilty on conviction, and provides a penalty not exceeding $300 fine and 30 days in jail, or both. Control of the Negro vote in East St. Louis is generally attributed to E. Gred Gerold and Dan McGlynn, attorney. Their respective power with the Negro vote is reflected in the returns of the judicial election last September.

In the Negro precincts, Judge William F. Borders, of the City Court, backed by McGlynn, received 2952 votes, and Judge Silas Cook, his opponent, 1553. Frank Taylor, backed by Gerold, his father-in-law, received 2423 votes and his opponent, John Desmond, 1537.

McGlynn Backing Doyle.
In the city election, McGlynn is backing the Doyle ticket and Gerold is supporting the Harris ticket. Commenting on the law prohibiting employment of paid workers at the polls, Judge Borders told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "That shows what fool laws can get on the books."

Borders, Cook and Desmond had filed affidavits of election expenses in which they recorded that they had hired workers.

MAKES BOATS UNSINKABLE

Japanese Perfects Stabilizer After 15 Years of Research.

KYOTO, Japan, March 23.—Thirteen years' research has rewarded Tomojiro Hamahara, electrical engineer, with perfection of a device designed to make a fishing craft and a lifeboat practically unsinkable. Briefly, the stabilizer consists of a pair of pneumatic steel compartments attached on both sides of a vessel and is electrically operated.

The device is so constructed as to enable a switch to turn automatically, according to the angle of the vessel's listing, and, when the boat is about to capsize, the device expands to the limit, making the boat double its normal width. The moment the boat is out of danger, the compartments close automatically. Hamahara also has perfected a pneumatic float, which enables a vessel to retain buoyancy even when under the waves.

6 KILLED IN WRECK OF BRITISH FAST TRAIN

Royal Scot Express Leaves Hills—Cause of Accident Undetermined.

By the Associated Press.
LEIGHTON, BUZZARD, England, March 23.—London, Midland and Scottish railway executives today sought to learn the cause of the wreck which yesterday piled up the Royal Scot express, one of the fastest trains in the world, and took sixty-nine passengers were injured.

The train, which frequently has traveled at the rate of 80 miles an hour on parts of the 400-mile run from London to Glasgow, was speeding along a straight stretch of steel, when the locomotive left the rails and keeled over on its side.
The first two coaches telescoped and the third and fourth, after swinging around, crashed into another coach before upsetting.
One of the dead was Sir George Saltmarsh, grain expert who was vice chairman of the Allied Wheat Purchasing Commission in 1915 and 1916. Two other passengers and the engineer, the fireman and a dining car steward also were killed.
The accident caused considerable excitement in this little town and police and the special constabulary of the district formed a cordon around the wreckage while rescue crews extricated the dead and injured from the debris. The railroad company announced that it would be many hours before the line could be opened.

Seen and Heard in Russia

"Terrible" Conditions in America
Page One News in Moscow Paper;
Borah and Robinson Played Up

Municipal Kitchens "to Emancipate Women From Drudgery" Being Opened; One Produces 40,000 Dinners a Day.

This is the tenth article on Russia by Henry Wales, Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who is touring the Soviet republic, published in the Post-Dispatch by special arrangement. Mr. Wales says Soviet officials have informed him that he may write without restrictions.

(Copyright, 1931.)
MOSCOW, Feb. 19.—(By Mail.)
THE Moscow News is a publication issued every five days in English and aimed to give world news to Americans and British in Russia. It consists of eight pages, and contains some foreign news clipped from American newspapers or cut and translated from cable and telegraph dispatches in the 14 morning papers printed in Russian.

The paper presents a fair balance of boosting all Soviet news and knocking all foreign copy. "One thousand persons dying of starvation daily in United States" is the scare head of the lead story on page one of the copy I have before me. The subhead states "50 states drouth stricken, about 10,000,000 unemployed (in America)."

Another article roasts Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for barring Russian timber and pulp. Below that is an item about Senator Robinson demanding recognition of the Soviet regime, and Senator Borah's observations on Secretary of State Stimson's recent pronouncements.

Attack on France.
There is a long editorial attacking France and her foreign minister, Aristide Briand, and the little entente for opposing the invitation for Russia to participate in the Pan-European deliberations at Geneva next May. Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov's reply to the League of Nations' invitation is printed in detail.

"Commercial Failures in U. S. During January" is a headline on page 2 and Irving Bush's proposal to reduce war debts and reparations is published below that.

"Stocks Drop Again in New York" is a headline on page 3, and opposite is another "Scheme to Further Enslave China With Another Big Loan." "Ford Rubber Estate Ends in Failure" is another headline. A speech by Prof. L. A. White of the University of Michigan that "capitalism is doomed" gets a good play.

An American's Letter.
Page 4 exhibits a two-column yarn that "Moscow Has Unique Institution for Mother and Child Welfare," and the leading piece on the next page is entitled, "War Psychology Against U. S. S. R. Developed by Fish Committee," under a Washington date line.

An American, named Charles Littleton, writes an inspired letter to the editor from Novosibirsk in the depths of Siberia to show that the climate there, 40 degrees below zero centigrade, is no more uncomfortable than on Chicago's lake front. He urges America to adopt the patterns of modern Soviet architecture, exemplified in the new buildings now going up in Novosibirsk.

Municipal Kitchen No. 3 has just been opened in the efforts of the Government "to emancipate women from the drudgery of cooking" and also to eliminate the class distinction of servant girls and permit these young women to enroll themselves in factories.

$400,000 Kitchen Supplies.
The new kitchen factory, as it is called, cost $600,000, and has $400,000 worth of equipment, including a dozen enormous soup stoves, mechanical potato peelers, electric bread cutting machines, dishwashing apparatus and other appliances.

Kitchen No. 3 produces 40,000 dinners a day, of which 15,000 are consumed in the big restaurant attached. The other 25,000 rations are distributed by auto trucks to various factories, Government offices, schools and other organizations throughout the city in receptacles to keep the food warm.

A two-course dinner from this kitchen costs 40 kopecks, or 20 cents. When there is a meat shortage, vegetarian meals of three courses are served at the same price, but the customers seem to prefer the two-course dinner with meat.

Every meal is balanced to include 750 calories exclusive of bread. By 1933 it is estimated there will be more than 600 kitchen factories, large and small, functioning in Moscow, freeing a million women from the task of preparing meals.

It is eventually proposed to have meals delivered to all families ordering them by the month at their domiciles. Auto trucks will collect the receptacles in which the food is served every day when they deliver the next meal.

Meanwhile the servant problem has become extremely acute, owing to the difficulty in obtaining help, as most of the young women prefer factory work, with the movie passes, cigarette rations and the general freedom which goes with it.

Servant girls now generally sleep in the kitchen, on the floor, or even on the range, which is seldom used in the community apartments. They stay on their jobs only long enough to apply for jobs in a factory. Ten dollars a month and keep is an average servant's pay.

ROBERT THAL DIES; PRESIDENT OF AMERICAN ALUMINUM CO.

Succumbs at 73 After Six Months' Illness; Funeral Tomorrow Morning.

Robert Thal, 73 years old, president of the American Aluminum Co., 133 South Eleventh street, died yesterday in his apartment at the Park-Plaza Hotel following a six months' illness of cancer.

Mr. Thal was born in New York and came to St. Louis as a young man. He was for a time engaged in a vinegar and molasses business and then organized the aluminum company, a distributing firm. He had not been active in the business recently.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Laura Thal, a son, Herbert Thal, St. Louis, and two daughters, Mrs. Harry Schram, Chicago, and Mrs. Louis Silk, New York. The funeral will be held at Rindskopf chapel, 5216 Delmar boulevard, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in Mount Sinai Cemetery.

Beauty Mould
a reducing corset

that changes the line of FLESH to the line of FASHION

Excess flesh is a burdensome handicap to a fashionable figure. Of course, one can diet—or exercise strenuously. But these are irksome methods. Beauty Mould is the new method—the easy method. Wear this famous reducing corset and behold a new figure. Inches disappear from the silhouette the instant you put it on—and every day you wear it you actually reduce. Those ugly bulges around the waistline disappear. Your whole body slims down miraculously. A new figure appears—slender, supple, fashionable. Today's styles are worn in perfect form. Don't let another day go by without finding out how unbelievably slim and graceful you can look—and become—in a Beauty Mould corset.

Vanna Varden, famous model, says: "I never diet, but when I put on excess fat I immediately wear Beauty Mould and reduce down to 36. Then I discontinue, otherwise I reduce too much."

A new patented washable fabric...

Here is a totally new invention—a reducing garment scientifically constructed of a marvelous combination fabric. After months of research and experiment, patented Rubber-Tex was placed in combination with other fabrics—in a weight which we determined would be correct for reducing purposes. No other corset on the market is made of this identical fabric. And it is as easily washed as lingerie. It puts Beauty Mould in a class by itself. Try on a Beauty Mould. See how your silhouette is changed, instantly. Note how your waistline is slimmer, your diaphragm flattened. Fashion lines take the place of conspicuous fleshy bulges. Add a Beauty Mould to your wardrobe and you will add style and comfort to your figure.

TRUSTEE TO OPPOSE BORDLEY WILL SUIT

Document Legal and Charity Trust Can Be Carried Out, Attorney Says.

The suit filed in Circuit Court Saturday to set aside a charitable trust representing the residue of the estate disposed of under the will of Mrs. Blanche Bordley will be opposed by the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co., trustee. Its counsel, Samuel A. Mitchell, of the firm of Thompson, Mitchell & Young, denied that the trust was ineffectual in law, as alleged in the suit. The terms of document are legal and are not indefinite and can be carried out according to the charitable intentions of Mrs. Bordley, he said.

In her will, Mrs. Bordley provided that the income from the trust property was to be applied to the free treatment of incurable chronic invalids, preference being given for this purpose to the hospitals of the Sisters of St. Mary and St. Louis University. An inventory of her estate listed property with an estimated value of $788,000, so that after payment of specific bequests in the will, there would be approximately $435,000 left for the trust estate. However, counsel representing relatives of Mrs. Bordley who are suing to terminate the trust asserted the actual value of the estate was considerably in excess of $1,000,000.

Their contention is that terms of the trust grant discretionary powers to the trustees broader than the law allows. The trust contains a provision that the trustees may select some other charitable purpose for which the money is to be used in the event that the first purpose cannot be served. Another ground on which the plaintiffs base their action is that medical science does not recognize any disease as incurable.

The plaintiffs are Mrs. Adele Tatum of Los Angeles, a sister, and her daughter, Mrs. Adele Donovan Chambers. They ask that the fund be distributed among them and four other relatives as sole heirs-at-law of Mrs. Bordley.

Mrs. Bordley died last April at Los Angeles. She lived at the Forest Park Hotel in this city and was the widow of Daniel C. Bordley, a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. She had been married previously to William Felix Munster, an Englishman, at the time a member of Parliament.

In April, 1877, they were on their honeymoon in this city, which was the bride's birthplace, and were stopping at the old Southern Hotel the night that hostelry was destroyed by fire. Mrs. Munster was carried out by a policeman, followed by her husband, and was taken to the home of a friend. Munster returned to the scene of the fire and just as he arrived a woman jumped from a window. It was said through some quirk of mind he became convinced the woman was his wife, and, persisting in this conviction, shot himself to death.

The law firm of Harding, Murphy & Tucker of Kansas City, Mo., with Foristel, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht, as local counsel, represent the petitioners.

SYMPHONY SIGNS GOLDSCHMANN FOR NEXT TWO YEARS

He Will Take Charge of Orchestra Next Fall Under Contract, Ending System of Guest Directors.

BEGAN HIS CAREER
AS A VIOLINIST

Head of Programs Given by the French Government at the Sorbonne — Second Visit to U. S.

Vladimir Golschmann, young Parisian violinist and conductor, has been engaged as conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for the next two years. He will take charge of the orchestra next fall, ending the guest conductor system which has been in vogue for four years.

Golschmann was guest conductor of the orchestra during January and February of this year, directing four pairs of regular concert series, four radio programs and a student's concert. He visited the United States once before as conductor of the Swedish Ballet.

Born in Paris of Russian parentage, Golschmann began his career as a violinist, but abandoned the instrument to become a conductor.
He conducts the concerts which at the Sorbonne, University of Paris. He has been regular conductor of the Glasgow Symphony orchestra in Scotland and the Bilbao Symphony in Spain. He has appeared as guest conductor in Paris, in Belgium, in Spain and in New York.

Last summer Golschmann was one of the conductors of the concerts of the International Society for Contemporary Music at Liege.
A series of guest appearances in Budapest were among his engagements last summer.

The Symphony Society, in its announcement of Golschmann's engagement as regular conductor, says:

"Golschmann first became an international
established the Concerts Golschmann in Paris. These concerts were devoted to a new idea. In program making, a first half presenting works of classic masters and the last half dedicated to the new work of contemporaries.

"At these concerts were launched the famous group known as 'The Six,' whose modern atonalities and mechanistic rhythms were new to conservative music lovers.
The concerts became either a generation or a scandal according as the ears which heard them were attuned to modern idiom.

"During his first visit to America,
he conducted the New York Symphony Orchestra in guest appearances. Walter Damrosch afterwards described him as a young conductor 'with a genuine flair for the German classics combined with a distinct interpretative genius for the moderns.'

Personality Wins Support.
"His second visit to America was last January when he came to St. Louis, presenting a first program of monumental proportions which won his audiences from the start. His magnetic personality crystallized a growing conviction that the St. Louis orchestra had need of a permanent conductor.
That same personality won the heartily co-operation of his orchestra and commanded both the enthusiasm and respect of the instrumentalists."

Golschmann's spring and summer engagements will keep him in Europe until early fall when he will come to St. Louis with his wife.
During his recent engagement here, he expressed a desire to become an American citizen.

While the society made no announcement of the new conductor's salary, it was understood it will be $20,000 a season.

RAFAEL SABATINI IS DIVORCED

Novelist Does Not Defend Suit Brought by Wife.
By the Associated Press.—Mrs. Ruth Goad Sabatini obtained a divorce decree from Rafael Sabatini, novelist and dramatist, today. Sabatini did not contest the suit.

The divorce was granted on the ground of misconduct. It was alleged that the marriage was unhappy and that the couple had been separated some time ago.

Shrine Potentate Here Tomorrow.
Esten A. Fletcher, imperial potentate of the Shrine, will arrive tomorrow noon by plane from Kansas City, for a two-day visit in St. Louis.
Jackson J. Hagan, potentate of Moolah Temple of St. Louis, left for Kansas City this morning in a Bellanca plane which will bring Fletcher here. Three army and three navy ships will meet the plane 50 miles west of St. Louis and escort it to the city.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER
December 12, 1878Published by
The Pulitzer Publishing Company
Fourth Boulevard and Olive Street

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always stand for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy, or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

April 10, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

What Would Happen If—

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
If Al Capone was a poor man and stole a loaf of bread for his starving family?

If the men who engineered the looting of a bank's safety vault stole a quarter from the police?

If lawyers scheming to throw business into receivership so they can pocket large fees did so without the cooperation of court officials?

If men elected by people to manage their affairs used the same methods in private affairs as in public? How long would they remain in business?

If prohibitionists were compelled to practice what they preach?

If men employed by the Government in detecting crime and enforcing the law were forever barred from using their experience thus gained to defeat the law and protect crime?

If every act, protocol or treaty formulated by the President and his Cabinet were made public?

If everybody had sense enough to mind his own business?

VERITAS.

A Square Deal for Workers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE permanent cure for depression lies in a square deal for the workers. Captains of industry were quick to take advantage of improved machine methods to increase their output and reduce labor expenses, when common sense should have told them that increased production calls for more instead of less buying power on the part of the workers.

Eventually things will be adjusted on a basis of about four hours for the day's work, or six shifts for the 24 hours. Then the machine will be a help to everybody. Wages will be good and there will be no overproduction or "depressions," because the causes, low wages and unemployment, will have been removed. Overproduction is not possible when every need is supplied.

O. B. GAY.

Russian Humor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Moscow correspondent of the Manchester Guardian has sent to his paper a significant account of the state of humor in Russia. It appears that in the herculean struggle to achieve the aims of the five-year plan even the humorous magazines have been recruited for propaganda purposes, with the result, according to the correspondent, that they have become quite deadly to the non-Russian eye. And he hazards the guess that even the most faithful of Communists are not liable to split their sides with laughter over the state jokes which have as the eternal goat a grossly caricatured capitalism.

But the Russian masses have a comic outlet with stories that travel with amazing rapidity by word of mouth. One of the best known tells of two Russians who at the end of the five-year plan meet each other flying in high-powered airplanes, two products of mass industrialization. One shouts to the other: "I'm flying to Kiev to see whether I can find any eggs there." And the other answers gloomily, "I'm coming back—there aren't any." "That is worthy of Gogol at his best," it provides the necessary comic release to a society straining to the uttermost to achieve a goal and it is impossible not to feel that the Russian leaders are making a great mistake in forcing it into more or less underground channels.

M. C.

The Disability Scandal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial, "More Facts About Disability Pensions," hits the nail on the head, as did the previous publications showing the number of men drawing disability pensions as well as substantial salaries from the Government.

If my memory serves me correctly, toward the last of Theodore Roosevelt's term he brought about the retirement of an army surgeon in order that he could accompany him on his African big game hunt. He was so much washed to continue his duty in the army, but well enough to go to Africa on this expedition. It seems therefore that abuses of this kind are not entirely new and have been abetted even by one who is often held up as a model of probity and who ranted against disbursement in public affairs.

MAZYCK P. RAVENEL, M. D.

Columbia, Mo.

Regulating Finance and Industry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR leading editorial regarding proposed plans for public regulation of finance and industry is a splendid contribution for a worthy cause. If such law would prevail, it would go far to speed up business activity toward a normal state. Your discussion is the wisest and best that I have seen or heard on this vital question. If I may say so, it is the first great step forward I know of since the bad times began.

B. SAGE.

THE PEOPLE DO UNDERSTAND IT.

Interviewed at Washington during the meeting of the Democratic National Committee recently, Gov. Smith ventured that electric power was not a major issue at this time because, so he said, "the people don't understand it." With all respect for Mr. Smith's astute political judgment, a fairly good case could be made for popular interest in electric power, and popular understanding, too.

The 10-year battle for Muscle Shoals, for example, has revolved around this issue. Other considerations have been involved, to be sure, but the main objective has been electric power. The technology of the industry may be Greek to the popular mind, but that is true of many questions referred to the verdict of the people. Comparatively few of us have the special knowledge to say whether a specific duty is too high or too low, but no one will hold that the absence of such knowledge disqualifies the people for passing upon the character of a tariff act. All the circumstances of tariff legislation, the personnel of conflicting forces, the debates frequently more emotional than economic—the whole scenery, so to speak, is illuminating. The scenery of electric power, the actors, the very lines of the play, present a drama similar to that of the tariff.

There is nothing complicated or obscure about the proposition that the Government operate its own hydro-electric power plant at Muscle Shoals. That purpose, so frequently stated, is to determine the cost of producing and distributing electric power so that the public may know whether the privately owned companies are charging a fair price for their product. That is all there is to the Muscle Shoals question, and the public understands it, as such. Neither is the public deceived or impressed by the philosophical signs or the fears of selfish casuistry, or even the executive "shudders" paraded by the opposition to this elementary business demonstration.

The Post-Dispatch asserts with confidence that the American people are familiar, too, with the practices of the Power Trust as revealed by the Federal Trade Commission's investigations—the kind of investigation, may we say, which Chairman Haskob of the Democratic National Committee, impliedly, at least—would abolish. College professors secretly employed and paid as propagandists while ostensibly appearing as disinterested specialists! The invasion of high schools with doctored textbooks! The subsidizing of newspapers by advertising patronage and even the purchase of newspapers for the control of public opinion at the source! An attempt to buy the election of a United States Senator, with a generous campaign contribution to the opposing candidate so that, whichever side won, Mr. Insull could not lose! Enterprises prodigally capitalized by securities issued in fantastic amounts from that sanctuary of legal immunities enjoyed by the holding companies!

All this the American people know.

Senator Norris has often contrasted the prices of electric power on the Canadian and American sides of the boundary. He quoted those figures again at the progressive conference. In Toronto, he tells us, the average householder pays 1½ cents a kilowatt hour for electricity, while in Buffalo, which is nearer the falls, the average home rate is 5 cents an hour.

Further information along this line was given by Willis Spaulding, manager of the municipal plant at Springfield, Ill. Speaking from the practical experience of 23 years, Mr. Spaulding says the cost of producing and generating power in Springfield is 1 cent per kilowatt hour. There is a privately owned plant in Springfield, he explained, which generates its power at Peoria. To meet the competition of the municipal plant this private plant sells power in Springfield for one-half the price it charges at Peoria, the site of production.

Those figures can be understood by anyone who reads the newspapers which print them, and the people are reading those newspapers. The silence of the power interests is reasonably good proof, we submit, that the figures are correct.

In our opinion Gov. Smith is mistaken in assuming the people do not understand this power question. We believe they do understand its essentials, and we also believe that Mr. Smith, as Governor of New York and presidential candidate, contributed greatly to the popular understanding.

The people understand it. They are ready for the fight of 1932. They are waiting for a leader.

CHILDREN AT THE MOVIES.

Few sights are more common in metropolitan centers than the nightly spectacle of small children viewing moving picture productions entirely unsuited to their years. In company with elders who under no circumstances would permit their children to read printed stories of the same movies, boys and girls just learning how to figure long division regularly follow themes recognized as dubious by most grown people, certainly of no good for children. It is a sight which more and more is worrying thinking men and women. As one of them, Mary Ward, puts it in the current Civic Repertory Theater magazine:

When one looks at the small boys sitting on the edges of their seats during a picture about racketeers, and the small girls gazing fascinated at ladies in ermine who are glorified gold diggers, we no longer wonder why girls leave home or why we have so many expert gunmen! Parents should wake up to the fact that the selection of amusements for their children and the guidance of a child's taste in these amusements is of the greatest importance.

Proof of the point can be had for the looking. A survey of current titles tells the story.

THAT CHOCOLATE NIGHTCAP.

Mr. Coolidge's hot chocolate nightcap, about which Bruce Barton wrote a delectable little piece some time ago, is seriously faulty, according to the experts. The experts say that a paste should be made of melted chocolate and sugar, which Mr. Coolidge blandly omits. Again, the combination of milk and water is frankly deplored. Some of the cognoscent iniel on milk only, others on plain water, but none of them countenances the mixture. And one of the lily-painters insists a dash of vanilla is indispensable, though the ex-presidential recipe invokes no foreign flavoring of any sort, depending solely on the intrinsic charm of the jolly chocolate berry. Altogether, it is harsh judgment which the chefs of the swankiest hotels have passed upon the Coolidge Cup, and we suppose they are right. Certainly they speak with authority. But this much may be said for the piping bowl as served by Northampton's elder statesman: it is an honorable, wholesome goblet, untainted by illegality, the only constitutional potion that has gotten into pure reading matter for ever so long.

What if it does not meet the fastidious requirements of the cognoscent? Mr. Coolidge likes it, and Mr. Barton smacks his lips in approval. That ought to be, and will be, sufficient for the rank and file of America's hot chocolate addicts.

JUDICIAL TYRANNY AT EVANSVILLE.

An astonishing demonstration of judicial tyranny was given by Probate Judge Travis B. Williams of Evansville, Ind., in sentencing Mrs. Ines B. Crandall to three months in prison and to pay a $500 fine for contempt of court. Mrs. Crandall's husband, a locomotive engineer employed by the L. & N. Railroad, was killed in an accident a year ago. The company offered to settle for $1000. Mrs. Crandall refused. The company then applied to Judge Williams for an injunction restraining Mrs. Crandall from filing a damage suit against the railroad anywhere but at Evansville or in the court district where the accident occurred. Mrs. Crane had filed suit in St. Louis and, when she refused to dismiss it, Judge Williams sent her to prison.

Under the authority of the Federal employers' liability act, as expounded in C. M. & St. P. v. Schendel, her attorneys obtained a writ of habeas corpus from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago and Mrs. Crandall has been freed. The law is perfectly clear. Under the common law, damage suits may be filed in any place where service may be obtained. It was specifically provided in the Federal employers' liability act that such suits may be brought wherever a railroad does business. The L. & N. does business in St. Louis. In the Schendel case, in a decision written by Judge Kenyon, the court held that state courts had no right to interfere with the prosecution of a suit in foreign jurisdictions under Federal law.

Judge Williams' inexplicable conduct toward Mrs. Crandall should be made the subject of official inquiry. We are unable to discover that he had the slightest legal justification for granting the injunction limiting Mrs. Crandall's field of action. If any question of jurisdiction was present, that was for the St. Louis court, not for Judge Williams, to pass upon. His brutal sentence of this widow, who was merely acting on the advice of her attorney in disregarding the court order, is something new in judicial cruelty.

AUTHORS, REVISED.

Authors is coming back—that old game which once upon a time the whole family played on winter nights beside the coal oil lamp with the red and white polka dot shade. But father, who forever was asking for "The Scarlet Letter" and "Innocents Abroad," and grandma, who couldn't tell Longfellow's beard from Whittier's, would never know the old game. Not the way the boys are playing it in Prof. Irving Babbitt's course in comparative literature at Harvard.

According to the Harvard Crimson, each day the class meets tickets numbered from 1 to 100 are sold at 10 cents each to course members. During the hour two students count the authors mentioned by the professor, who, sitting hunched over a stack of books and papers, reels off literary names at a lively rate. The student whose ticket corresponds to the number of authors mentioned gets the pot—after the operator takes out a cut of 10 per cent. And all this under the professorial nose of "one of the glories of the university"—a renowned scholar who has centered his attention on the theories of classicists, neo-classicists, romanticists and folks like that. No, the parlor of the whatnot would never recognize authors, revised.

A HOME RULE MANIFESTO.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is opposed to the "terminal permit" bill, pending in the State Senate, also to the bill, before the House, designed to place our city buses under control of the State Public Service Commission. It is fair to assume that the significance of the board's action is formally opposing those measures will be appreciated by our State legislators. This action is the official expression of our city administration, coming, as it does, from the city's three highest elective officers—the Mayor, the Comptroller and the president of the Board of Aldermen, who constitute the Board of Estimate.

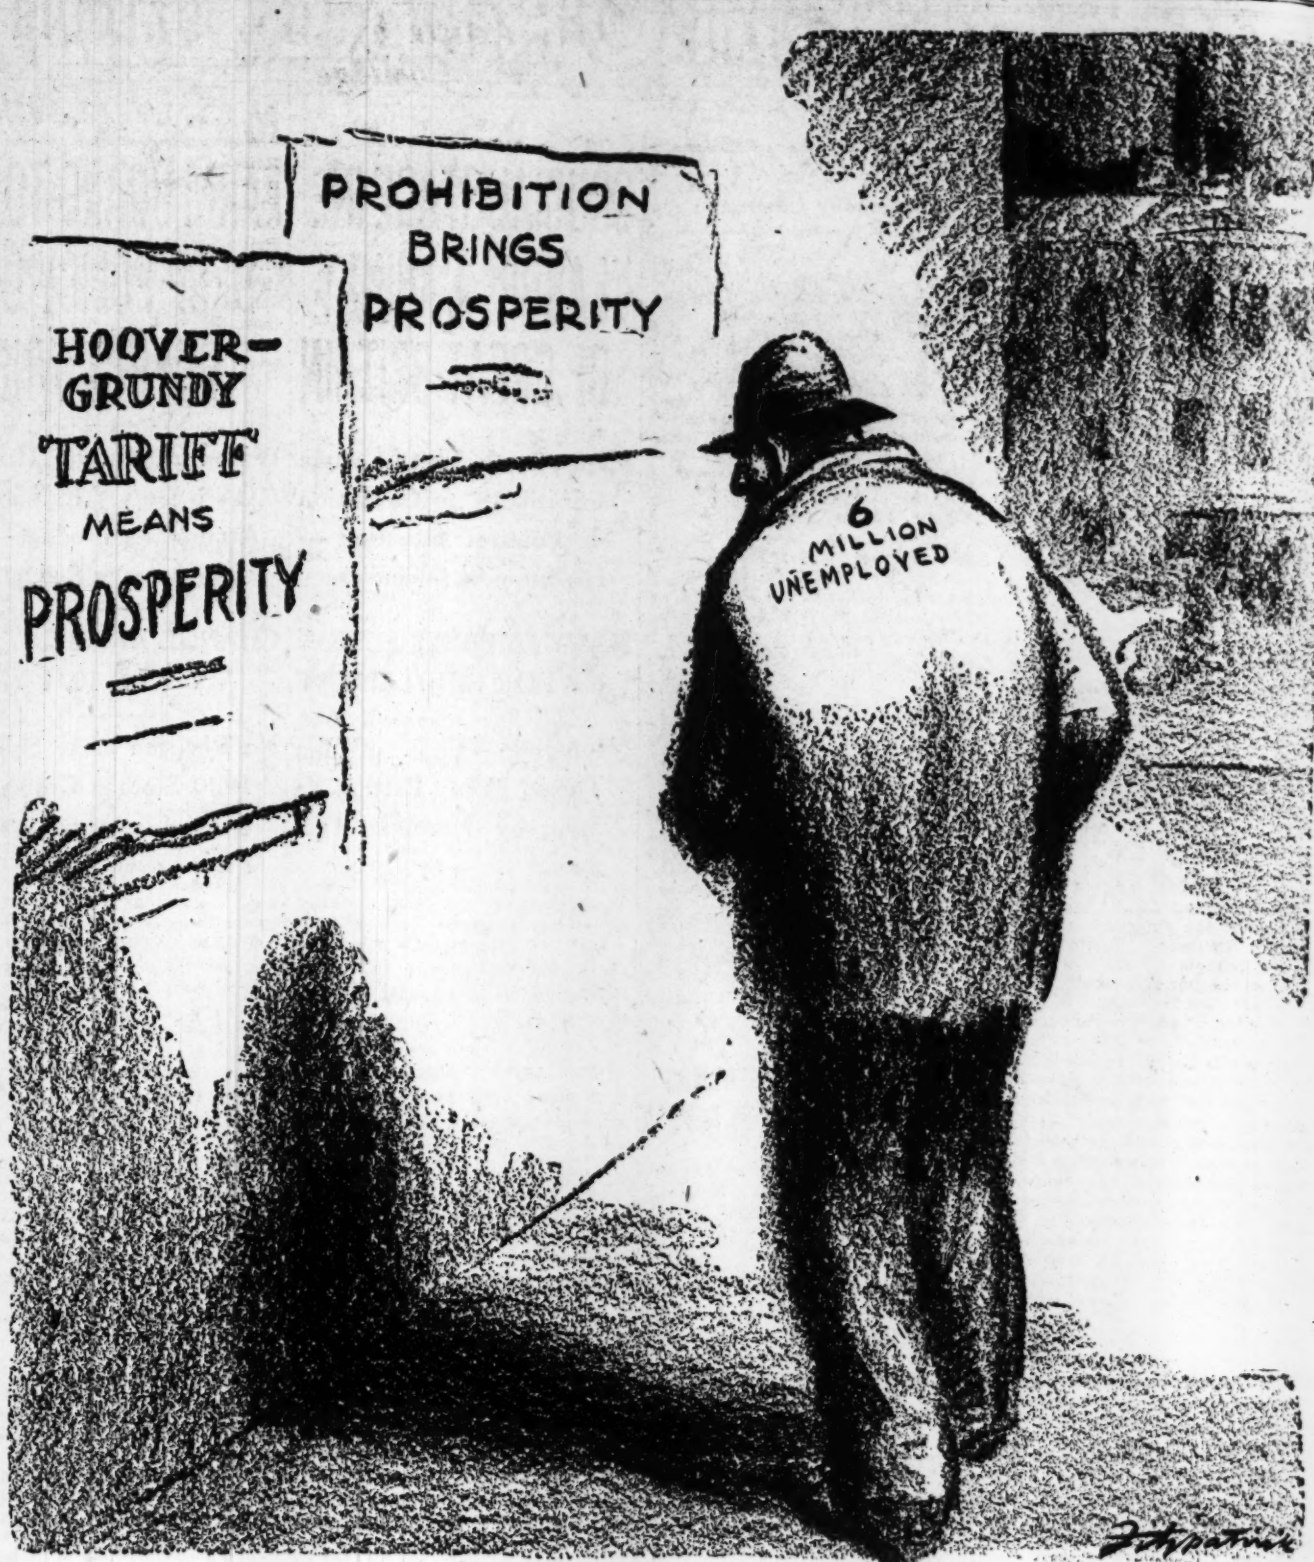

Further, this action expresses the public sentiment of St. Louis. Broadly speaking, it expresses the swiftly developing public sentiment of the cities of Missouri, as evidenced in the position of so many of our cities on the question of natural gas. Our smaller cities, like our larger cities, have learned from costly experience that, once a franchise is given, control of the enfranchised public utility has passed out of the city's hands. And a franchise under any other name, "terminal permit," or whatnot, is still a franchise, as the Post-Dispatch has repeatedly shown.

Mayor Miller, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen are to be commended for unequivocally stating the administration's opposition to the pending bills. It is understood that the City Government's legislative agent, at Jefferson City, will be instructed to oppose the measures. It should be quite unnecessary for him to resort to intensive buttonholing or persuasive argument. The Board of Estimate's statement should convince any legislator that both bills are special interest proposals and objectionable to the people of St. Louis. Both bills should be defeated, and we are confident they will be.

THE G. O. P. CIVIC PROGRAM.

Consummation of all the good things advocated by the Republican nominees for the Board of Aldermen in their platform would be equivalent to a municipal millennium.

In favoring home rule for transportation facilities, the candidates, who, if elected, will constitute a majority of the Board of Aldermen, took the sensible view of this vital question. They have ratified in a formal way the stand which all but one of the present members of the board have assumed informally. Another highly pertinent declaration of the platform calls for putting the lid on amendments to the zoning ordinance; the nominees have committed themselves wisely to a policy of restricting amendments to those needed to correct inequalities. The candidates have hopped on the political bandwagon in urging revision of the system of special taxes for public improvements, without, apparently, knowing just where the procession is headed. River front development, outer park establishment, smoke abatement and all the other things the platform advocates are highly worthy. On the whole, the Board of Aldermen will do very well to adhere to this program laid down for it.

YESTERDAY'S PROPHETS.

"Give the Progressives a Chance!"

Brain power and sound experience assembled at recent conference prove progressives are capable of taking larger share in government, and will do so; their employment plan, calling for fulfillment of industry's duty to worker, described as alternative to revolution; only planned economy can avert swing to fascism or communism.

From the New York World-Telegram.

NO other political group in the country can gather from its own ranks such an imposing list of practical scientists and economic experts as attended the progressive conference in Washington. In brains, in practical experience and in constructive program no other political group can approach this one.

Since brains count in the long run, we hope the progressives are going to have more and more to say in governing this nation. The sooner the better.

The round table on unemployment and stabilization of business was typical of the superior intelligence and experience of this group. To name but a few of the speakers: There was the chairman, Senator La Follette, who began working four years ago to prevent this depression while most political and business leaders prated of permanent prosperity, and who has led every recent fight in Congress for unemployment prevention and relief. Dr. Leo Wolman, Dr. Stuart Chase and Dr. George Soule, three of the outstanding industrial economists of the country; William Green of the American Federation of Labor; D. E. Robertson of the Railway Brotherhoods; and Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the three chiefs of virtually the entire organized labor movement of the country. And Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, whose daring and wisdom in meeting the unemployment crisis put to shame the timorous conservatism of most metropolitan executives.

These progressives, who speak with the authority of facts and experience, are singularly unanimous in their diagnosis of the sickness of our industrial society and in their prescription for a cure. They are agreed that there is no simple quick panacea. But they are equally agreed that there are definite practical measures which can be and should be undertaken now by industry and by Government to cope with the emergency and prevent its recurrence. They are agreed that the cure must be drastic. Their plan, in general outline, is as follows:

1. The responsibility of capital to guarantee steady and adequately paid work for labor—a charge upon industry prior to the dividend rights of stockholders. Industry must set aside a sufficient portion of its income to permit advance planning and staggering of production over periods of depression and for unemployment insurance.

2. To take up permanent unemployment slack caused by increased machine production and efficiency and to permit labor to share the increased profits therefrom, high wage levels must be maintained and the working week reduced to five days or less. This is not only practicable, but necessary in the interest of capital. Only through such a wider distribution of wealth among producers can there be a sustained consumers' market, upon which capitalist profits depend.

3. The direct responsibility of Government to protect the mass of its citizens when capital violates the inalienable rights of the common man to labor, to eat and to live. The Federal Government has failed completely in this respect. It has failed to constitute a permanent national economic council, representative of capital and labor and public, comparable to the war industries and labor boards, as a clearing house for facts and plans.

The Federal Government should provide adequate industrial and labor statistics as an indispensable barometer now lacking. It should stagger public construction over periods of depression. It should co-ordinate and administer a national employment system of city, state and Federal agencies. It should encourage and aid the states in providing the social insurance which industry has failed to provide, insurance against industrial accidents, old age and unemployment. It should abolish child labor and thus release to unemployed adults 1,000,000 jobs. It should set an example for private industry by initiating the five-day week for Federal employees.

Pending stabilization of employment, when private and municipal funds are inadequate to meet emergencies such as the present, the Federal Government should prevent starvation by distributing through local agencies direct relief from Federal appropriations.

For this and all other Federal expenditure necessary to prevent unemployment and care for its innocent victims, the Government should use the income and inheritance taxes to make the rich pay to save the economic system of which they are the chief beneficiaries.

If capital will not permit a wider distribution of wealth through higher wages and shorter hours for labor, the Government by taxation must redistribute wealth sufficiently to maintain the production and consumption of goods.

The alternative is revolution. Free men will not starve in the midst of wealth. They will destroy the Government which protects a system of economic slavery. The price of survival in the machine age is planned economy. If it cannot be provided by our democracy, it will be attempted by a dictatorship.

If democracy cannot provide jobs and a decent living for the masses as the progressives demand, this country is headed for fascism or communism.

MR. INSULL FORGOT ABOUT OREGON. From the San Francisco Call-Peoples.

MR. ARTHUR INSULL, while he sneers at the idea that the power trusts had anything to do with the result of the last election, conveniently forgets what happened in Oregon. In that State a regulated monopoly has charged rates on a basis of $8,000,000 for valuations that should have been assessed at $1,440,000. Another regulated monopoly paid $1,226,000 for a hydro-electric development and capitalized it at more than $10,000,000. Oregon voters checked their electric bills, based on such overcapitalization, against what they would be if there were no Power Trust—and voted against the "regulated monopolies."

Mr. Insull calls the Power Trust by another name, but he hasn't changed its odor.

WASHINGTON, March 23.

THE one person in Washington in a position to speak with authority on the question raised by Gov. Huey P. Long as to whether one should "dunk" or "crumble" one's pot likker isn't even interested in the issue. This individual is the hostess of a tea house near the Capitol which sends out occasional notices to Southern Congressmen informing them that "turnip greens, Southern style," will be served at such-and-such a time. In language less refined but more alluring to Southerners, that means "turnip greens and hog-jowl—and pot likker, too, if you want it." Numerous legislators from below the Mason and Dixon line respond eagerly to the invitation. But do they dunk or do they crumble the pot likker? "Why, I don't know. I've never noticed them particularly," says the hostess. "As a matter of fact, I don't believe there's much call for the pot likker. They certainly do like the turnip greens, though."

It is evident that Gov. Long will have a large field for reform when he comes to Washington as Senator from his State. However, before he is given all the credit or blame for making the nation culinary-conscious, it should be noted that he has a precedent in this matter. Only last year, a Representative from Maine risked an attack of apoplexy by glancing at the House restaurant menu and discovering thereupon "Idaho potatoes." In the name of the potato growers of his State, he demanded to know the sinister influence behind this "unfair propaganda." For a brief while it looked as though the broad subject of food labels would be given congressional airing. Virginia statesmen trembled for the fair name of their ham, and loyal sons of the Free State skirted themselves for a battle in defense of chicken a la Maryland. However, the issue was lost among lesser matters and finally forgotten.

It is a safe bet, though, that the pot likker question won't be dunned so easily. There are many other dishes, too, that might provoke Gov. Long to determined action. Native Louisianians in the capital are anticipating the Governor's first sight of that sacrilegious served up here under the name of "chicken-okra gumbo, Creole." To offer that pink fluid with two scraps of vegetable and one cube of tow to a person accustomed to a thick, slippery mixture of okra and rice harboring in its dark green recesses at least an entire chicken drumstick or wing is to make one agree with Congress that food is truly nothing more than agricultural rehabilitation. And Huey may not know the worst yet; north of the Mason and Dixon line, they put sugar in cornbread!

Questioning and Crusading
THE QUEST FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE: 1898-1914. By Harold Underwood Faulkner. (The Macmillan Co., New York City, $4.)

THIS study of American society from the Spanish War to the beginning of the World War will comprise volume 11 of "A History of American Life," to be complete in 13 volumes by as many authors. The studies already prepared are as follows: "The Coming of the White Man" (1492-1848) by Herbert L. (1867-1890) by Thomas A. Wertenbaker; "Provincial Society" (1690-1763) by James Truslow Adams; "The Rise of the Common Man" (1830-1850) by Arthur C. Greene; "The Emergence of Modern America" (1865-1875) by Allan Nevins; "The Great Crusade and After" (1914-1928) by Preston W. Slosson. The authors of the remaining volumes will be E. V. Rieu, John M. Tarbell and Arthur C. Schlesinger.

It may be remarked incidentally that unless Mr. Preston W. Slosson was indulging in a bit of irony when he chose his title, "The Great Crusade and After," which refers to the World War, there is certain to be something fatally wrong in his view of the subject under discussion. "Crusade!" God save our sense of humor!

For the period treated by the work here listed, it seems that "at the opening of the twentieth century, America, in making her fortune, was in the habit of losing her soul." Obviously, this would have been just too bad, and so the "quest for social justice" began forthwith, which, one gathers, has informed the controversy between the "set America's house in order," "This is heartening news, if true. It is also very encouraging to learn about the transformation of the laissez faire business system into one of social responsibility and control" and of "the subduing of mechanical forces to the will of man" (which man, or men, precisely, and to what purpose?). The reader is informed also that the author "shows us America, all unconscious of the impending doom of the war, questing toward the democratic ideal." Will the final volume on "The Great Crusade and After" perhaps show us America "all unconscious of the impending inevitable, still optimistically engaged in the same old 'questing' business?"

As for the term "democratic," so dear to the windy soul of the demagogue and his dupes, might we not well quit using it until we have some realistic economic definition of it that will stand examination?

Maps of Antarctic Region Found to Be Incorrect By Sir Douglas Mawson Expedition

Soundings and Distribution of Ice Pack Suggest Coastline West of 128th Meridian Trends to the North.

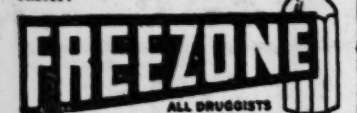

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON.
By Wireless.
(Copyright, 1931.)

TASMANIA, March 18.—Shortly summarizing the achievements of this season's operations, a notable feature is the wide sector of the Antarctic pack ice region through which observations have been pursued. Beginning at the eighteenth meridian and ranging west to the sixtieth degree east longitude, field work was extended through one-third of the circuit of the Antarctic regions.

end to CORNS between toes

Those terribly mean corns between the toes that seem to defy all treatment—they're as easily removable as any other with FREEZONE! A few drops of FREEZONE instantly put the corn to sleep. Pain is deadened at once, and soon the corn becomes so loose that you can actually lift it right out with your fingers. Hard corns or soft corns—all yield to FREEZONE. Why suffer?

Relief at last from After Meal Discomfort

Mrs. Alice Tabbetts of Lexington, Mass., says: "Have taken ACIDINE regularly and I have received much relief. It seems wonderful to be free from gas and stomach ache."

Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this prescription succeeds when many other remedies fail.

ACIDINE contains Japtase, which in laboratory tests, digests 300 times its weight of starch which causes trouble. It neutralizes acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, relieves gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness. Few other remedies contain this combination to relieve acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies your resistance by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at Walgreen's. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, pain, heartburn, distress, fullness, short breath are relieved. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

In the Morning!

Just take a pleasant-tasting candy Cascarets tonight and see how fine you feel next morning. You wake with coating gone from your tongue. Breath is sweet; eyes brighter; you feel like a different person. The most pleasant way to be rid of constipation is with candy Cascarets. They are made from cascara—a never-failing laxative—as any doctor will tell you—and a laxative that actually helps strengthen the bowel muscles. So the prompt, harmless relief Cascarets always bring is lasting! Their gentle, thorough action makes them ideal for elderly people. Children love their delicious candy flavor.

graphical work on the coast line was commenced. Thenceforth, through 80 degrees of longitude, very notable additions were made to geographical knowledge.

Maps Found to Be Incorrect. First of all, in passing Adelle Land to our sphere of operations, features were added to the coast line of that territory and an extension has been made to the coast line designated as Wilkes Land by our former 1911 expedition. In the region still further west, as far as Queen Mary Land, sufficient evidence has now been accumulated to state that land does not exist in the latitude assigned for North's High Land, Totten High Land, or Budd's Land, which have appeared on some published maps.

In the case of Knox Land, however, ice-covered land does exist in the neighborhood of the position assigned to it by Wilkes. In this segment, however, new land has been discovered, sighted from our plane. It exists to the northwest from a well-defined cape situated near the junction of the sixty-sixth parallel and the 127th meridian. This is apparently coextensive with the coast sighted on about the sixty-seventh parallel and extending east and west of the 128th meridian. This new land has been charted as Banzare Land, after the title of our expedition.

Westward of the 120th meridian soundings and the distribution of the pack ice suggest that the coastline trends somewhat to the north. Between the 115th and 116th meridians, an ice surface resembling ice-covered land was observed at a distance. For this landfall, with a view to commemorating Balleny's exploits in this sector in 1839, it is proposed to maintain the title Sabrina Land, which has appeared in diverse locations on several Antarctic charts.

Trend of Land Discovered. Soundings and the distribution of the pack ice indicate that westward of the 116th meridian the coast recedes rapidly to the south, but as it goes west beyond the 115th meridian it again trends northward to join Knox Land. The termination of Wilkes Land, like Clarke Land and Durville Land, is an ice jam in shoal waters where grounded bergs hold up the pack ice and develop stable conditions conducive to the extension of the shelf ice from the cap of the adjacent continent.

In this region, however, is an ice land about 1300 feet high, quite impossible to have been seen from Wilkes' ship. This we have charted as Bowman Ice Land after Isalah Bowman, director of the American Geographical Society.

West of Queen Mary Land the coast was again sighted at a distance from the plane. This landfall commences at the eightieth meridian on the seventy-sixth parallel of latitude and extends south and west in a great sweep to Cape Amery in latitude 78:21 and longitude 72:29. Mindful of the interest taken in our work by the Duke and Duchess of York, who visited the Discovery before her departure from London, we have the honor and pleasure in naming this new territory Princess Elizabeth Land. Westward of Cape Amery in the deeply indenting territory of MacRobertson Land is a great sea, extending beyond the sixty-ninth parallel, but the coast comes forth again to Cape Darnley, which is a sharp turn in the coast in latitude 67:20, longitude 60:25. The coast then follows west and north to join with Kemp Land, as reported last year.

MacRobertson Land Features. The MacRobertson Land coast has now been mapped in considerable detail so that all its salient features are charted and named. It is of most interesting character, being diversified with mountains, peaks, islands and other features of note.

When MacRobertson Land was discovered last year it was hoist with heavy pack ice so that portions of the coast line were located from the plane at a distance. We now find that in most cases the distances to the coast were underestimated owing to the clarity of the air and the wonderful visibility in these regions.

obtained has been extended by regular daily meetings for marine life and by chemical examinations of the waters traversed. This distribution of plankton and its bearing on whale feeding areas has been given due attention throughout the wide sweep of the Antarctic seas.

Dr. Ingram, one of the most active members of the expedition, besides helping with the routine biological work, has conducted investigations on bacteria in sea water with interesting results, particularly in regard to their role as denitrifiers.

Simmers, besides maintaining a two-hourly record of observations, has been very successful in pilot balloon work investigations of upper air currents. His records made on the Antarctic coast extend to heights of more than 50,000 feet. A feature of general interest that has now been elucidated in his demonstration that the violent winds of the plateau and coastal slopes of some parts of the Antarctic, such as Adelle Land are in a large measure at least surface winds, ascending only to 500 or 1000 feet above the ground level.

Useful data in other departments of physical investigation have been made, namely in magnetism and solar radiation. Also observations were made on cosmic ray penetration by a Geiger-Müller election counting apparatus, kindly constructed for the expedition by Prof. Grant. Finally, glaciology, geology, and ornithology have all reaped a harvest in this virgin field.

On several occasions during the cruise the flag was flown on these friendly lands. This demonstration was effected with special ceremony at Cape Denison, the Scullin monolith and Cape Bruce.

Time will be required to elaborate for publication the data required in these many spheres of observation, but it is anticipated that the picture story of the expedition will be exhibited shortly. In this production Capt. Harley has concentrated his well-known artistic talents and has spared no pains to secure a telling record, not only of the ship and key work, but also of the lands discovered and their inhabitants.

Airy Fairy CAKE FLOUR

Again science triumphs. Airy Fairy Cake Flour—the biggest improvement in cake flour in decades—fully demonstrates what science can accomplish when applied to every day problems. It is so thoroughly adapted to its purpose—that of making soft, moist, delicate cake, fairly velvet-like in texture, it practically eliminates cake failure. Among the remarkable features of this wonderful cake flour is that it is always the same. Airy Fairy is pure wheat, nothing else. To attain the astonishing whiteness, the velvety, rich, powder-like fineness, soft Winter wheat grown in the Valley of the Golden River must be used. It is so rich in itself less shortening is required. Yet with all its delicate and feathery lightness, Airy Fairy Cake does not dry out as does an ordinary cake. You have no idea how delicious a cake can be until you have made one with Airy Fairy Cake Flour.

AUSTRIA INVITES ALL EUROPE INTO CUSTOMS UNION

dependence, aroused bitter feeling in this country. The comment was made it had been logical to hope that any honest effort to overcome the economic depression of Europe, states, no matter by whom inaugurated, would receive encouragement.

Official information of the contemplated union took the Austrian commercial world by surprise as German competition was an element greatly feared in Austria. Fears have been somewhat allayed by information that existing duties on goods produced by weak Austrian industries will remain in force for many years. The union is described as only a nominal one designed to stimulate neighboring countries to embark on so-called regional preferential treaties.

Dr. Schober's comment is that the plan is still only in project form, requiring long negotiations because of which it is too early for outsiders to become alarmed or to protest. He told the diplomats who visited him yesterday that the scheme would not infringe on Geneva Treaty obligations and that he hoped they would recognize this and withdraw their protests.

French Cabinet Approves Inquiry on Austro-German Accord.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 23.—The French cabinet approved today the movement Initiated by Aristide Briand to determine whether the Austro-German economic accord involved any infringement of the independence of Austria.

The French Government, it was said, has minimized the importance though the Paris press has called it the first step in an Austro-German union and a possible threat against European reconciliation. In Government officials, however, emphasize that Germany and Austria merely reached an agreement to make a treaty, but that the treaty has not been negotiated. They said that the representation made by the Powers at Vienna was entirely friendly.

Germany Explains Proposed Union to Powers.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 23.—Foreign Minister Curtius today received successively the French, British and Italian Ambassadors to explain the intention of Germany and Austria in agreeing to a virtual customs union.

During the next few days, it was announced, the Foreign Minister will see the Ministers of all states bordering on Germany and Austria, to give similar explanations. In Foreign Office circles confidence prevailed that Curtius can allay any fear that the proposed union might be in contravention of existing treaties.

The Foreign Minister, it was said, hopes to persuade the representatives of other Governments that the Austro-German arrangement is a practical step toward realizing Briand's pan-European ideal. So far as Germany is concerned, it was said in Government circles, no protests or official requests for information are expected here.

Rioting at Madrid City Hall. By the Associated Press.

MADRID, March 23.—Rioting broke out around the city hall and inside the Council chamber today, when during a meeting of the City Council Alderman Garcia Cortes, formerly a Socialist and now a Liberal, opposed a measure for an increase of pay for municipal employees. Clerks, porters and other city employees stormed into the Council chamber shouting for more money and "down with Garcia Cortes!" Street cleaners and other employees packed the plaza, shouting. When Cortes left the city hall the crowd attacked him. Police dispersed the rioters without injury or arrest.

PRESIDENT ASSAILED BY DILL

Washington State Democrat Says Hoover Blocked Aid for Jobless. By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 23.—Senator C. C. Dill (Dem.), Wash., last night accused President Hoover of blocking congressional plans for relieving unemployment or restoring confidence among the people.

Speaking over the Pacific Coast network of the United Broadcasting Co., Dill said "the President disapproved all plans proposed and it would have been impossible to secure two-thirds majority to override the President's veto." He was always afraid Congress would do something to increase taxes on large incomes or take a part of the big profits of large corporations for public purposes," the Senator charged.

LOWER DRIFT TO STOCKS IN DULL MARKET; WHEAT DOWN

Rally in Which a Few Oils Are Conspicuous, Fails to Stimulate Much Enthusiasm and Prices Taper Off—Grain Board Says Stabilization Not to Include New Crop.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 23.—The Stock Market appeared more bored than depressed by the break in the grain market today.

The list sold off moderately in dull trading, but few shares were depressed more than a point. Bullish activity was mostly at a standstill, but there seems to be no contagion in bearishness of late. Transfers aggregated only 2,000,000 shares.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, General Motors, General Electric, Sears-Roebuck, New York Central, Radio, Anaconda, International Harvester, du Pont and North American lost about 1/2 to 1 1/2 points. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was a weak spot, dropping about 17 points to a new low. Case and Columbian Carbon lost about 3. Auburn, on the other hand, was pushed up over 7 points to a new peak above 220, and closed up 4 1/2 net. Some of the long depressed oils turned up for a time in the afternoon, in what looked like a drive against shorts. Westinghouse sold up 2 points at one time, but was up only a fraction at the finish. Frisco Railroad closed 2 higher.

Cotton was depressed in sympathy with wheat, losing about $1 a bale. June wheat, a relatively inactive delivery, dropped 12 cents to 64 cents a bushel and closed at 67. Other positions closed unchanged to 2 1/2 cents lower. Corn lost 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents. Among other commodities, silver held steadily.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly higher, but sterling cables were under considerable pressure, slipping off 1/4 to 1/8. Holland guilders were notably firm.

Break in Wheat Price.
The downward tendency which developed late last week was carried over into the early trading, and no sooner did its influence wear off than a drop in Chicago wheat to the lowest levels in 36 years prompted further selling.

The break in wheat on announcement that the Farm Board would not support the market for the new wheat crop was naturally a depressing influence on financial markets, but it lacked sufficient element of surprise to prompt any hasty selling of securities.

The most bullish influence in Wall Street at the moment seems to be the widespread feeling that the worst is known. The reduction in New York Central's dividend rate a fortnight ago has been one of the few recent surprises, although the speculative community was fully informed as to the low level of that and other carriers' earnings.

Several important dividend meetings are scheduled for this week.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, MONDAY, MARCH 23, 1931.

WANTS-REAL ESTATE

PAGES 1-12C

Postponement of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol meeting until April 2 removes one, but on Wednesday dividend meetings are scheduled for Baltimore & Ohio, Westinghouse Electric and Northern Pacific. On Thursday directors of Anaconda, National Cash Register, Lackawanna and Liquid Carbonic are expected to decide what should be done about disbursements to stockholders.

Despite the improvement in textiles, cotton was nevertheless, at least momentarily depressed, in sympathy with wheat.

Wall Street is interested in the news that Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, has sailed for New York. While Federal Reserve quarters say the trip "has no special significance," Wall Street expects that he has better reasons for making a voyage than merely to pay a social call. Some observers wonder what, if any relation, his visit may have to the agitation for international action to stabilize silver.

This miraculous Westinghouse mechanical man—the latest creation of the Westinghouse laboratories—that smokes a cigarette, speaks, acts and obeys every command of his master—will entertain you here every afternoon, (March 24 to 28) from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

And regardless of the convincing "records" and sales arguments that may have impressed you—do nothing—until you have personally investigated the amazing advantages of WESTINGHOUSE "Completely Balanced" design.

Remember—WESTINGHOUSE is the greatest name in the field of automatic electric devices for the home. Remember—too—that WESTINGHOUSE'S famous engineers spent twelve years in perfecting this scientifically "balanced" refrigerator.

See its superb beauty. Learn about its many new improvements—its amazing economy—before you decide upon any less modern refrigerator.

You Can Save $50 to $150 Yearly in Real Money

Let that sink in deeply. You have thought that an electric refrigerator would mean added expense.

We tell you that with a WESTINGHOUSE—the "Completely Balanced" refrigerator—you can actually save $50 to $150 yearly.

Not theoretically but in real money—money that you are needlessly paying out. In other words, you are more than paying for a beautiful WESTINGHOUSE Refrigerator, yet you are enjoying none of its convenience and economy.

Two Whole Years to Pay

HOUSEHOLD HELPS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Culinary and Meal Planning Problems Often Simplified by a Suggestion.

Ginger bread waffles and chocolate waffles are novelties which the children especially will enjoy.

Leftover fruit gelatin which has been used for dessert can be served on lettuce and topped with salad dressing or mayonnaise and served as a salad.

The one chief don't in waffle making is: "Don't beat mixture too much or waffles will be tough." Also don't beat after folding in egg whites. Bake about two minutes.

A tablespoon of lemon juice added to apple pie or apple sauce will lighten the flavor. Lemon juice added to water in which lettuce or celery is soaked will make them crisp.

As a rule, both raisins and nuts are floured before they are added to the cake batter. This flour prevents them from sinking to the bottom.

Fruit should be included in every breakfast menu—orange juice, grapefruit, fresh fruit in season, baked apples, canned fruits or dried cooked fruits.

Buffet serving is not only an attractive way of serving a supper, but is an ideal way of handling a large number of people in a crowded space.

Egg yolks should be beaten until they are very thick and lemon colored, if they are to be used in sponge or pound cakes or in omelettes.

Oysters, supported by milk, eggs and crackers, not to mention butter, make a dish substantial enough for any meal.

A good breakfast stimulates digestion and if this functional process is delayed or abused by poor diet, it means that the body is not enjoying its usual good health.

Many of the more economical and less tender meat cuts can be utilized if the housewife resigns herself to allowing two or three hours for baking the main course at dinner.

For refreshing wilted vegetables add juice of lemon to pan of water.

To keep such vegetables as old potatoes or cauliflower white during cooking, boil in water to which a slice of lemon or a little lemon juice has been added.

Extracted juices furnish fruit acids needed for flavor and body in the drink, together with essential vitamins and minerals of dietic importance. Eggs or milk may be added where a higher food energy value is desired.

A potato ricer saves time in the preparation of cream of asparagus soup, potato soup or any other cream soup.

Cheese dishes, such as rarebit, should be cooked at a low temperature in order that they may cook slowly. If the flame is too high, they become tough and stringy and very indigestible.

When aluminum ware becomes dull or black, clean with a cloth dipped in lemon juice. Then rinse in warm water.

Marshmallows gain flavor by being soaked in orange juice before combining in salad.

One dish meals are most acceptable on days when shopping or recreation takes the housewife away from home. Oftentimes the dinner piece de resistance is baked in the morning and reheated before serving time in the evening.

NOODLES AND SPINACH
An Appropriate Basis for a Nice Vegetable Dinner.

Break up enough fine or wide noodles to make three-quarter cupful and cook in one quart of boiling water for 10 minutes. Add one teaspoon salt to the water. Drain and put half of them in the bottom of a buttered baking dish.

Chop canned or fresh cooked spinach to make one and one-half cupfuls and season with salt, pepper and one tablespoon melted butter. Put half of this over the noodles and cover with thin slices Swiss or American cheese. Add the rest of the noodles, then the rest of the spinach and another layer of cheese.

Put one-half cup milk over this, and sprinkle the cheese with three tablespoons buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes, or until the cheese has melted and the crumbs browned. Serve as the main course for luncheon or a vegetable dinner.

MODERN CULINARY PRACTICE

Use the Liquid in Which Vegetables Are Canned.

Prejudices in regard to the use or care of certain foods are hard to overcome, and some of the hardest deal with canned foods.

It is a mistake to throw away the liquid in which vegetables are canned, for it contains considerable of the mineral and vitamin content of the food that have been extracted by the cooking.

Cook the canned vegetable in a saucepan with this liquid until it has evaporated as much as desired.

The flavor of the food is not necessarily improved by pouring off the liquid and rinsing the vegetable in cold water, though many people think so. Try the method just described instead and taste the result.

A Favorite Dish. Cereal fruit puddings provide a simple and nourishing last course for meals during Lent. One cup of cooked cereal mixed with one-half cup of milk, one-half cup of corn syrup, one beaten egg, a little nutmeg and allspice and one-half cup of chopped dates or raisins and baked in a slow oven for 40 minutes is a favorite Lenten dessert.

cereal in soups? Yes!

JUST sprinkle in some Kellogg's Rice Krispies next time you have soup. Adds the flavor of toasted rice. Delicious!

Rice Krispies are the "different" cereal. So crisp they crackle in milk or cream. Wonderful for breakfast, lunch or supper. Order a red-and-green package. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

INCLUDE EGGS IN THE FAMILY'S DAILY DIETARY

Serve Them As a Main Dish or Incorporated in Combination Dishes.

Eggs have been so cheap these last few months that it has been possible to use them frequently in meal planning without being in any way extravagant. They are so valuable as food they should have a big place in the family dietary.

Very young children are fed egg yolk as a source of iron, phosphorus, fat and vitamins, and experts advise that if possible one egg a day be planned for school children.

When there is any objection to eating eggs by themselves, put them in puddings, in spices, and combine them with other foods.

Plan also to serve eggs in a number of ways to avoid tiring of them.

Eggs should be cooked slowly to be most digestible.

BANANA SANDWICHES

This Fruit Makes a Delectable Nutritious Filling.
Mashed, thoroughly ripened bananas are recommended for sandwich fillings, especially in combination with a number of other foods.

For example, one mixture uses mashed ripe bananas, chopped salted peanuts and lettuce on slices of white or whole wheat bread. These are particularly good for school or home luncheon sandwiches as with a glass of milk and some fresh fruit they make a well balanced and nourishing meal.

Ripe bananas are valuable for correcting or preventing an acidosis condition.

CROQUETTES HELP TO VARY FAMILY MENUS

These Dishes Offer a Pleasing Change From the More Simple Types.

Home cooks are offered excellent opportunities to vary the family menus through the introduction of croquettes and souffles.

Vegetables can be featured in these dishes which also offer another way of preparing fish.

Croquettes call for a very rich cream foundation sauce. Souffles use eggs and milk. They are baked instead of fried in deep fat as are croquettes.

Few home cooks specialize on souffles as they require a certain skill in the making. Croquettes, however, are easily made. They lie in frying them without having them soggy.

Swedish Souffle.
Four eggs, two teaspoons sugar, salt and pepper to taste, one cup evaporated milk, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup boiling water, one cup canned peas and one cup carrots.

Melt butter, add flour and blend thoroughly. Stirring constantly, add water and cook until sauce thickens. Then add milk and continue cooking about two minutes.

Beat eggs, add sugar, salt and pepper, then the white sauce. Pour mixture over vegetables. Bake one hour in moderate oven.

Sweet Potato Croquettes.
Five medium-sized sweet potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter, one egg, well beaten, one tablespoon milk, one-third cup chopped nut meats and bread crumbs.

Wash and bake potatoes in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until soft. Break into halves, scrape out pulp and pass through potato ricer. There should be a pint of mashed potato. Add salt, butter, egg and milk. Add milk slowly. The mixture should not be too soft to handle.

Add nuts, and mold into pear-shaped croquettes. Roll in crumbs, milk, and again in crumbs. Pat into shape and fry in deep fat (375 degrees F.) about five minutes. Drain on unglazed paper to absorb excess fat. Or place in an oiled pan, sprinkle with oil and brown in very hot oven (600 degrees F.) about five minutes. Use stalks of parsley as stems.

Salmon Croquettes.
Prepare a white sauce. Remove bones and skin from salmon. Flake, add lemon juice, egg, and white sauce. Shape mixture into croquettes. Dip in crumbs, undiluted evaporated milk and crumbs. Fry in deep fat (375 degrees F.) hot enough to turn a one-inch cube of soft bread golden brown in 40 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper to absorb excess fat. Or place in an oiled pan, sprinkle with oil and brown in very hot oven (600 degrees F.) about five minutes. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

Oven Baked Meals.
In planning menus it is well to allot such dishes to the days when other baking is going to be done so that the heated oven will be utilized for more than one dish. Just make sure that the other baked products require the same degree of heat for cooking that the meat does.

Lettuce Piquante.
Allow a quarter head of lettuce for each service. Slice finely and place on it two or three slices of tomato. On top of this lay four fillets of anchovy. Serve with a highly seasoned French dressing and sprinkle with chopped hard-boiled eggs.

FRESH VEGETABLES ARE FEATURED AT ALL MARKETS

They Arrive Daily From Various Countries and Southern Climates.

Vegetables are never as attractive as they are in the early spring when they are so effectively set forth in the stalls and windows of the grocery stores and meat markets.

While there are favored ways of preparing vegetables, most home cooks are on the lookout for new recipes. Here is an attractive way of serving beets and a savory salad made with Brussels sprouts.

Beet Cups.
Boil good sized beets until tender, plunge into cold water and slip off the skins. Cut the tin from the small or root end, cut thin slice from leaf end so the beet with root is squarely when standing on this

NICE CHEESE CAKE RECIPE

A Delicate as Well as a Nutritious Filled Pastry.

Cheese cake is having a run of popularity. A nice sweet of this type is made according to this recipe.

Cover a pie pan with a rich pastry, glaze it with the slightly beaten white of an egg to prevent it becoming "soggy."

Make a filling of one cup of cottage cheese, one-half cup of cream, two tablespoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four egg yolks, well beaten; one-half cup chopped, blanched almonds; one cup well-washed and drained currants. Mix well, fold in the whites of four eggs stiffly beaten.

Bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes, then reduce the temperature to moderate for 10 minutes.

end. Scoop out the center of the beet, being careful not to break through the sides. Chop the scooped portion, heat in a pan with melted butter, or browned chopped bacon, season with pepper and salt. Restuff the mixture into the beet cups, top with small pieces of butter, place in baking dish and heat in the oven.

Brussels Sprouts Salad.
Wash and cook brussels sprouts until tender. Cool, marinate in French dressing and place in refrigerator to chill. When ready to serve arrange four or five sprouts on each salad plate on a bed of lettuce. Sprinkle with finely chopped pimento mixed with walnut meats finely chopped. Serve with Parisian dressing made by adding two tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons chopped red pepper, two tablespoons chopped celery, one-half teaspoon chopped onion and one-half tablespoon chopped parsley to one cup French dressing.

[illegible]

Mike Hall, finished with a gallant drive yesterday to win from the light-weighted The Choctaw of the Audley Farm Stable, Miami, Fla., by a neck, after leaving the barrier in the mile and a quarter test the last of the 10 starters. Plucky Play from the Northway Stable, San Jose, Cal., was third, less than three lengths back of the victor.

The last time he won a new track record was one-fifth of a second, was too various a pace for Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau, odds-on favorite. This big bay gelding from Binghamton, N. Y., was quoted in the early books as being "about as fast as the wind," although at the moment during the spring struggle did he lead.

Mike Hall Slow to Begin.

While his running mate, Hal P. Headly's Pigeon Hole, set a burning pace for the field, Jockey Steve O'Donnell moved Mike Hall along without hurrying his horse back

St. Louis may not win any national soccer championships this year but it can hardly miss taking the amateur championship of Missouri after getting away to such an impressive start yesterday when the Schenbergs defeated the Victorians A. C. of Kansas City, 5 to 1. More than 100 fans called the wooden arena. Fairground Park, to witness a game which started out with the earmarks of a contest and wound up as an exhibition of skill by the St. Louis Municipal League champions. The Schenbergs scored six times in the second half.

Saturday, at Kansas City, the second game of the series will be played and the Schenbergs should win by an equally top-heavy score.

Some players in the Kansas City team seemed to know enough about how to play soccer but the team did not function well as a unit. Probably, the club has not been extended in league games this season, and the Schenbergs' in-

When the St. Louis team put on the pressure the visitors cracked. Gene Thumm, Joe O'Mara, Buddy Luckett and Barrett Long of the Schenck forward line, gave a fine exhibition of individual skill and team play. Thumm and O'Mara were particularly brilliant.

Manager Cromer sent his reserves into the game at the start but at half time he drew out three more and sent in Tom Hendricks, Jim McCarthy and Dave Barnett. The Victoria Club was well beaten at half time, 2-1, but they were hopelessly outclassed in the second period.

For the seventh time, the Sherman Park and Columbus Square teams tied in their struggle for the Playground League championship. This time the score was 2-2. Gene Barry counting in the last 30 seconds of the second over-time pe-

KAVANAUGH TIE HELLRUNGS AND GO TO LEAD IN SOCCER LEAGUE

By James M. Gould.

Unless the board of directors of the St. Louis Soccer League has a decided change of heart at a meeting to be held this week, the regular season of the professional circuit ended yesterday with a doubleheader. The men of the Hellrungs and the Ben Millers were the winners in the first game, 3-2, while the Hellrungs won the second, 2-1. The Hellrungs, managed by Phil Kavanaugh, are champions. They won their first empty title by playing a 3-3 tie with the Hellrungs while the Ben Millers were defeating the Hellrungs 1-0. Kavanaugh's team finished the play with 17 points. One point behind them were the Hellrungs and the Ben Millers with the Hellrungs last with 15 points.

Only about 700 "mourners" witnessed the probable close of a season financially disastrous for the promoters. It is likely the deficit of the league will reach the $3000 mark when the books are balanced.

A meeting this week may provide one or two exhibitions with out-of-town teams or, maybe, the promoters will order some more ink and extend the schedule a week or two.

Rudge Is the Whole Show.

In yesterday's opener, the score should have read, "Rudge, 3; Coca-Cola, 3." For the Hellrungs came forward was the whole ball game and scored all goals for his team. Rudge became inspired in the second half and counted twice. It was in this half that Chartrand fouled in the penalty. Rudge converted a penalty kick.

International Team Tennis Play Begins Tonight

NEW YORK, March 23.—A three-day international tennis match, beginning tonight, gives the United States a chance to recapture a few of the laurels which the three invaders, Jean Borotra, Christian Bousquet and Pierre Landry, won the national indoor championships last week.

The matches will be handled in the same way as the Davis Cup matches, which they closely resemble. Four singles encounters and one doubles match make up the program. The American team, which faces the Frenchmen in the first match, is composed of Frank Shields, second ranking American player; Berkeley Bell, conqueror of Shields and runner-up to Borotra in the indoor singles championship; and the Davis Cup star, John Van Ryn, and George Lott. Bell was added to the team partly as a reward for his brilliant showing last week and partly because John Doe, first ranking American player, did not arrive in time to play.

JURY IS COMPLETED FOR BROTHERS' TRIAL

Prosecution Indicates It Won't Show Why Lingle Was Killed.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 23.—A jury to try the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune police reporter, was completed at 11:15 today and immediately went to work.

The jury was taken out while attorneys wrangled over points of law. No session was to be held this afternoon and the opening arguments were set for tomorrow.

The last veniremen were questioned, the prosecution indicated that the question of "Why was Lingle killed?" might go unanswered.

The defense attorneys of this case have said, "The State is not allowed to prove why a man was killed. If we can prove that the defendant fired the shot that killed Lingle, it will make no difference whether he did it or not."

The defense also will ask that a subpoena be issued for the records of the Chicago Police Department, "board of strategy," formed to solve the Lingle slaying. The defense is anxious to get records of the part which they believe played in the investigation by Frank Hagan, an under-cover worker. The defense charges that Hagan, the first man to point to Brothers as the slayer, "framed the defendant."

The defense contended that any of the conversations Brothers may have had with the "Board of Strategy" between the time he was arrested and the time he was indicted were inadmissible because they were made while Brothers was under duress.

The court advised the defense that the records of "board of strategy" would be available to them whenever they were wanted. The State pointed out that in order to use them, the defense must show that he records constituted competent evidence.

The court also said that the records of the Chicago Police Department, which maintained headquarters, the company owning the building, and the main office of the Chicago Tribune, which financed the search for Lingle's slayer.

The United States Court of Appeals today, in affirming the sentence of three men convicted of using the mails to defraud by the sale of bonds of a German language newspaper, said: "To permit these shocking frauds to go unpunished on the flimsy excuse that the defendants were misled by the sale of bonds of a German language newspaper, would be a travesty on justice and would place a premium on artistic villainy and rascality."

The defendants, who were convicted of the sale of bonds of the Volks Zeitung, a Milwaukee publication, and their sentences are: Otto W. Klose, 20 years; Arthur Lorenz, seven years; and William H. Stuck, five years. They were tried at St. Paul in 1928, and their appeal was argued here. The bonds were advertised throughout the Middle West, and several St. Louisans were among the investors.

DECLINE OF FAMILY IS TOPIC OF SERMON

Prof. Walter A. Maier Deplores Modern Attitude Toward Parenthood.

Prof. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Seminary, speaking today at the Lutheran noonday service at the American Theater, spoke of the status of American family life.

"American families are growing smaller," he said. "Do you know that while the families of a generation ago averaged 5.44 members, the corresponding average for the present generation is but 3.55? Divorces continue to assume increasingly alarming proportions. Do you know that our divorce rate has increased from one divorce in every 16 marriages in 1890, to one divorce for every six marriages in 1927? Modern parents are often not willing to contribute their love and energy to their homes, as they did. Do you know that according to the statistics compiled by the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, there are more than 2,000,000 wives employed in occupations which take them away from their homes every day—more than twice as many as there were back in 1890? And this, too, is a responsibility, are dragged away from their homes by allurements and attractions more frequent and more inviting than ever before.

A census I had taken last week at one of the best high schools in the St. Louis area showed that on a given night almost 60 per cent of the pupils, boys and girls between 15 and 17, were not at home between the hours of 7 and 10, that 80 per cent of the pupils of that high school attended the movies from once to five times a week, and that almost half of the parents refuse to take their children to the movies, a figure which is 20 times as low as the average for the entire nation. An Eastern Judge tells us that of 4000 juvenile delinquents, only three had enjoyed religious instruction and Bible training.

"A home that is built according to the plans of the Divine Architect is a home that welcomes the pattern of little feet. In the beginning, as one of the fundamental rules for all time, Divine Wisdom laid down to all parents this privilege and this command: 'Be fruitful and multiply,' and there never has been a truly happy home in which this command of God has been willfully and stubbornly neglected.

"Of course, in our day of diminished families, when the graduates of our women's colleges are excluding themselves from wifehood and motherhood, when all the modern theories for the improvement of the marriage relation are built up on the idea of childless families, when young people are told that children restrict opportunities for advancement and pleasure, it may sound exaggerated and futuristic to picture the blessings of parenthood, and to emphasize the responsibilities which are attached to it. Yet we have the clear Word of God, and once again, to illustrate the truth, the tragedy of the evasion produces, to which physicians and attorneys can lend their drastic testimony."

MAYOR'S MANAGER GETS WRIT TO SEE E. ST. LOUIS REGISTRY Restraining Order Issued Against Election Commissioners on Charge of Delecting Voters List.
A temporary restraining writ was issued today against the Board of Election Commissioners of St. Louis in the application of R. H. Huchsel, campaign manager for Mayor Frank Doyle, a candidate for re-election, who complained that he was refused the right to examine the registry of voters.

The order, issued by City Judge Borders, restrains the Election Commissioners and their chief clerk, Thomas Connon, from refusing Huchsel the privilege of examining the books. Huchsel's petition alleges that the Election Commissioners are preparing to strike the names of approximately 3000 registered voters, the majority of them Negroes, from the books to the detriment of Mayor Doyle and other candidates. Huchsel recited that he is seeking to examine the books in connection with the execution of these challenges by the Election Board.

The Election Commissioners are W. H. Heckert, George Kirby and Thomas Hayes Jr.

UNION SEEKS ALLEGED SLAYER OF PICKET

Names Committee to Investigate Disappearance of J. O. Thompson, Baker.

Central Trades and Labor Union appointed a committee yesterday to investigate the disappearance of J. O. Thompson, charged with first degree murder in connection with the killing of a union picket stationed in front of his bakery shop.

Thompson's $25,000 bond, given after his arrest last September, expired Feb. 2, it was learned early this month when the Circuit Attorney sought to have the bond declared. Thompson had left the city a few days previously.

The labor organization instructed its committee to co-operate with the Baker's Union in seeking to learn how Thompson was able to obtain bond, despite the first degree murder charge, in what circumstances the bond was permitted to lapse, and in appearance, pending Thompson and returning him for trial.

Judge Weinbremer, in Court of Criminal Correction, admitted Thompson to bail, holding that the case involved elements of second degree murder. The bond given remained in force during the December term of court, which ended Feb. 2, and through an oversight resulting from a change in court room clerks, Thompson was not taken into court for re-arraignment.

The union picket, Alexander Zander, was shot last Sept. 17 in front of Thompson's bakery, at 501 E. Emerson avenue.

The organization's Legislative Committee was instructed to support legislation looking to the public utility, particularly transportation. The motion was preceded by a discussion of franchises and the statement was made that only by withholding franchises could effective home rule be achieved.

Richard Murphy and Bruno Sordell, candidates for the Board of Education, were endorsed at the meeting. Murphy was former president of the board and is now a delegate to the Central Trades and Labor Union, representing upholsterers and cabinet-makers.

National Capital News

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Commerce Department Friday announced that exports of chicken eggs in 1930, bringing about an export balance in poultry products favorable to this country for the first time since 1927.

Another development encouraging to the poultry industry is announced by the poultry division of the department, that per capita consumption of eggs in the United States apparently continued through 1930 its rise of the last 20 years. In 1929, for each of the 121,000,000 people in this country, 267 eggs were used, compared with 219 eggs in 1927 and 206 in 1929.

The United Kingdom market, which is the principal world market for eggs, established a high price, though no statistics are given. Egg prices in the United States were low and the commodity competed with European eggs from the British and German markets.

The bureau of standards announced the various color phases of sunlight and daylight, ranging from yellow through white to blue can be reproduced from an ordinary electric light bulb through the use of certain "white light" filters recently developed.

This development will be of great value in photography and the optical sciences, the bureau says. They enable the photographic technician to measure the speed of his emulsions under approximately the same conditions as exist in natural sunlight.

Charged With Laziness

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized because of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability. So many of us are only half ourselves, only fifty percent efficient, because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity! That persistent tired feeling—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides an unusually difficult situation in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany.

This new, improved magnesium comes in the form of small white tablets called Magnesia Oxidosa which do not have to be chewed, but may be swallowed whole. It is Magnesia Oxidosa, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active oxygen. Now, active oxygen, as any doctor will tell you, when generated within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks the putrefaction and fermentation in the gastro-intestinal canal. It exercises a stimulating effect upon the activities of the intestinal walls and acts as a mild laxative in larger doses.

All three effects are necessary to the true relief of acidity and Magnesia Oxidosa supply them in a perfectly natural manner.

5-Day Acidity Test
See for yourself how much acid has to do with your run-down condition and that persistent feeling of tiredness. Make this 5-day acid test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxidosa from Walgreen Drug Stores, or any other druggist on our money-back guarantee. Take two after each meal for five days. Note the pick-up in your pep and vigor. Mark the new peace of your stomach and nerves. If five days' test doesn't show you a decided improvement in your health, return the balance of the Oxidosa to your druggist and he will refund your money.

"NICE ENOUGH, but Notice Her Teeth"

They look as if they were never brushed!

You can brush teeth and gums faithfully, but they will continue to look neglected and offensive to others so long as you ignore the millions of germs that cause stain, ugly yellow, decay and serious gum diseases.

Ordinary tooth pastes won't help you one bit. But this new KOLYNOS Dry-Brush Technique quickly kills millions of germs that attack teeth and gums... and so cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—right down to the beautiful, naked white enamel—without injury.

KOLYNOS Will Surprise You
KOLYNOS is unlike anything you've ever used. The very moment it enters the mouth, this highly concentrated dental cream undergoes a remarkable change. It becomes an exhilarating, antiseptic FOAM that permits the Dry-Brush Technique, advocated by dentists as the one way to derive full benefit from dental cream and brush.

This FOAM gets into every tiny pit, fissure and crevice, and kills millions of destructive germs... 190 million in the first 15 seconds. It neutralizes acids that cause decay, gently erases tartar, washes away the unsightly mucoid coating and purifies the mouth.

White Teeth that Adorn Beauty
Easily and quickly this KOLYNOS Dry-Brush Technique whitens teeth, keeps them sound and clean, and helps to firm up gums.

Discard Incompetent Methods
Never let anyone say that your teeth look as though you never brushed them. Start using this new KOLYNOS Dry-Brush Technique—a half-inch of KOLYNOS on a dry brush, morning and night. Within a few days you'll note a distinct improvement... Teeth will look whiter—as lustrous white as they were in childhood. Gums will feel firmer, appear healthier. And your mouth will tingle with a delightful, refreshing taste. Buy a tube of KOLYNOS from your druggist.

WOODCOCK INSPECTS PROHIBITION UNIT HERE

Grand Jury Charges Against Padberg and Byrd Expected to Be Taken Up.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, today began his inspection of the St. Louis prohibition unit, part of a nation-wide survey he has been conducting for several weeks. Arriving in St. Louis yesterday, he plans to remain here until tomorrow night.

While here, it is understood, he will investigate the recent grand jury charge of inefficiency in the St. Louis office and hear the reports of five investigators who have been looking into charges against Agents Merritt D. Padfield and Carol Byrd who were transferred recently from this office.

Woodcock said he had received no preliminary reports on the grand jury complaint or the charges against Padfield and Byrd. "When the grand jury sees fit to make such a report," he said, "it is a matter to be given most careful consideration by the authorities. If these men are not fit to work in St. Louis, they are not fit, and we would not be justified in keeping them in service in some other community. That is against the policy of the bureau."

"Too Much Reorganization," Woodcock was questioned about the recent establishment of a second prohibition office in the old Custom House, but declared the prohibition department was not considering a return to the old system of two independent squads. He explained that the bureau had 15 agents assigned to work on conspiracy cases and interstate transportation exclusively.

"I think one of the difficulties of the department has been too much reorganization," he said. "We are going ahead now to see if we cannot enforce the law. Recently I was quoted as saying that a special squad would be sent to St. Louis to clean up the town. I don't know that St. Louis needs cleaning up. What I said was that of the 500 new men to enter the service, St. Louis would get its fair proportion."

Commenting on the grand jury's complaint that St. Louis agents spent too much time trapping petty violators, Woodcock said: "If that is true, I think the grand jury's criticism is well taken. The bureau cannot overlook the small speck-proprietor and it cannot ignore complaints of commercial violation, large or small. Our policy is to proceed along a plan for breaking up the commercial traffic in liquor in each district."

He Questions Dillon.
Woodcock appeared at the prohibition office in the Federal Building at 9 a. m., apparently eager to get down to business. He greeted Deputy Prohibition Administrator Dillon, and began his inspection by questioning Dillon about the form and activity of his organization. Dillon described a still raid last night when his men seized a 150-gallon capacity still and 64 gallons of alcohol, arresting two men, on Clayton road west of Speede road, after watching the still in operation for five hours in the hope that others connected with the operation might be caught.

NURSEMAID, 18, ARRESTED
CONFESSES THREE HOLDUPS
By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., March 22.—Sally Scott, who is 18 years old, told police today she gave up work as a nursemaid last Friday to turn highway robber.

She described three holdups she committed. The girl said she wanted more money than she earned as nursemaid and had not the education to be a stenographer or bookkeeper. So she borrowed a pistol, and Friday night held up a drug store, getting $25.

Early Sunday morning, she said, she walked along Woodward avenue "until a man offered me a ride. He took me to Jefferson avenue, and I walked into a drug store. I said, 'Put up your hands.' But the two men there dropped behind counters. I shot at them, then I ran out."

"The man was still waiting, but he was scared and wouldn't drive me away. I gave him a push and walked down the street. I saw a restaurant and there weren't any people in it. Only a couple of waiters. I walked in and robbed them of the money in the cash register."

A few minutes after this robbery, Detective John Lawrence, in a radio cruiser car, recognized the girl from a broadcast description and arrested her after she pointed her pistol at him.

The girl said she was born in Memphis, Tenn.

TRIES TO END LIFE; BREAKS LEG
Man, 81, Falls From Ladder He Is Climbing to Reach Roof.

Edward Stoelting, 81 years old, of 1438 Sullivan avenue, suffered fractures of both legs yesterday when he fell as he was climbing a ladder to reach the roof of a shed in the back yard.

Stoelting told police he planned to kill himself by jumping from the shed because of ill health and unemployment. His son-in-law, Peter Walker, with whom he lived, told police he had hidden all the knives in the house before going out with his wife because Stoelting had threatened repeatedly to kill himself.

Speaking From Experience

by MARTHA CARR

(A New Department in the Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine.)

DEAR MARTHA: I am going to ask you a question and would be very much obliged if you would answer it. I have been working as a secretary in my present position for two years. My boss became ill last week and has been laid up all this week. I am wondering if it would be a breach of etiquette to go out and see him? Is it proper, even if I called up and asked his wife if it would be all right for me to drop in for a minute on my way home of a Saturday afternoon and say "Hello"?

I would appreciate your advising me.—Miss E. J.

YOUR interest in your employer's health is a very natural and kindly one. And you no doubt know, better than anyone else your status in that office. But unless your employer and his family have indicated to you that your position is more to them than just an office assistant, have actually shown that they wish to make you their friend and want to accept you in their home, I think you would be wise to show your interest by writing him a simple note expressing the wish that he will recover soon. After this, if the family volunteers to ask you to see him, you might stop in for a very short call. In short, a woman in business must leave the initiative in such matters to her employer.

While I am on this subject, I should like to quote the recipe for success given by an expert on business, and if I may be allowed, to give my own interpretation, as the recipe affects women, particularly. As he expresses it, "It is the ability to work efficiently and pleasantly with other people."

This means simply keeping up the spirit of the office. It does not mean indulging in personal pleasures, nor does it mean being stiff and uncommunicative. But the point of view of the office assistant must be focused on the business in hand and not on her own reactions to it.

It seems to me that one of the shortcomings of women in business is the inability to achieve impersonality. The social side and acquaintance with the personal life and family of the employer are not non-existent unless it is definitely indicated that a friendship would be welcome.

DEAR MARTHA: What I wish to ask about is the chance of work that would take only part of my time. Like so many business and households, the hard times have necessarily curtailed money for our real needs, and the burden is a little too great for my husband to carry alone and I should like to add to the income in a way that would not interfere with my household duties. I have, for instance, most of the afternoon I could give to such work. I am not afraid of spoiling my husband. I know when the time comes he would again, only too willingly, give me back my diversions. And I surely can forego bridge and other pleasures for a while for the sake of more important things.

The trouble is I have no training except for home-making. If you will kindly give me some suggestions, I shall appreciate it very much.

Very sincerely, A. G. E.

YOUR problem interests me mainly because it is different from asking for just a job. That request has been repeated over and over everywhere. But you ask for something out of the ordinary. But first I'm going to pin you down to facts. You see you must write again and tell me not what you are trained for but what kind of native equipment, talents and taste, and perhaps avocations, you have. Whether it is reading sewing, or floristry with your fingers, a liking for travel, children's pastimes, organization or church work, gardening, arranging exhibits, a flair for making a livable-looking room out of a few good pieces, cooking, office work, etc.; the field is almost endless. So take your mental mirror and tell me the result.

DEAR MARTHA: I wonder if you could help me recover from the dread of "bread and butter" notes? I accept my friends' invitations with delight. I go and always have a great time. I feel the greatest appreciation of their hospitality, and especially since I have not much to offer in return. But OH! Those "thank you" letters. Sometimes, though I am glad to get home, this moment I get off the train, after spending a week-end, my heart sinks flat. I fume and fret and spout my stationery with stilted beginnings; then I just dash in and write as I feel, which in the terms I use, doesn't sound at all "elegant."—AMY E.

WHY be "elegant"? That is a graceful, old-fashioned word that has been misused and misunderstood that it often passes in the same category with "ladies," another much abused term. You dash in and write as you feel. Why not? So long as you use good English and do not mind to score too much or litter the letter with over-done slang, your very natural letter must be more so.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch first. Correspondents ask all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an address, and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

ceptible than just a "pretty note." I am sure it has more warmth and interest for the motive. It is given to me to write a graceful, yet natural and unaffected letter or note. When one possesses the gift, such a note is a delight. But all you need is to go over in your mind the highlights and the personality you remember in such a visit, mention some of them and express your thanks.

DEAR MARTHA: I know your column probably is not intended to be a clearing house for the troubles of the business world. As far as I know there isn't any such thing. I've never written to a newspaper and always looked askance at those who did. Those who have written about intimate personal affairs have always looked especially foolish. But really, I'm "up against it" and would like an unbiased opinion—which none of my family or friends seems able to give me. The fact is, they all believe my husband imposes so much upon me, they simply think the only remedy would be a good stick.

We are living on a suburban place. I love it and I not only do the housework but a great deal of the outside work, feed the chickens, milk, work in the garden, sell anything I have over what we need ourselves and I have a little interest in some money my father gave me.

I'm sorry to say that, although an able-bodied man, my husband takes the car, rides on the roads, sits at ease reading his paper while I carry on the housework. He is a little and yet orders me around and compels me to ask for everything while he pockets the money.

NELLIE H.

O, I don't think the stick would help. You care for your husband with him. As I see it, you have "asked" your husband too much and demanded too little.

Of course it is ridiculous for the wife of a man who could make a good living, to do all the outside work. Tell him, with force enough to make him feel that you mean it, that you are going to write out a schedule of the things you intend to do in the future, and can do well.

Exclude milking and setting eggs—poor! Keep the money you make from the chickens and other things you are entitled to. Don't go to town and buy what you need. Ask for credit there until husband wakes up to the fact that you and the two children must have some of his care.

In short, make it clear that you have come to the end of your rope, turned over a new leaf, and intend to stand by what you say. Turn a deaf ear to the flare up; it will flare down and he will think more of you if he sees you have enough spirit to stand up for yourself.

TO MARTHA: I know no French at all and I sometimes wonder why it is that the shops and fashion magazines are constantly using words in that language to describe a color, a style or something else. I am fond of clothes and want to be just right, but it takes a lot of asking questions to find out what they mean. A new color, chateau, they write so much about. I think it's green, a funny green, but I want to know. C. H. E.

If you are not too busy, I would advise you to study French for the fashionists. It will not cost you much and it will certainly enrich you, mentally, in many ways. Of course, the reason French is used so much in the fashion world is because most of the fashion creators grow there and sometimes there is no English equivalent for the words they use to describe things in the mode. Even if you have no French you can always find out what you want to know about the application of it to the fashions by asking the heads of departments of the shops.

The color you mention, very smart in this spring's combinations, chateau, is also called "tulle" and can best be likened to the dull, pale green of the lime. Tulle refers to the pale cluster of delicate pods that hang from the under side of the leaf of the garden tree. This delicate shade has a tendency to make a skin look fairer and perhaps its happiest combinations are with black, navy or brown. Or if you care for the new tricolor effects, quite new now, you might add white to any one of the combinations mentioned.

Glass containers are not only attractive, but they are practical in the same category with "ladies," another much abused term. You dash in and write as you feel. Why not? So long as you use good English and do not mind to score too much or litter the letter with over-done slang, your very natural letter must be more so.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

When the sawed-off shotgun roared a flint to the devious career of Diamond Joe Esposito, his poisoned slug, fired at almost point-blank range, burying themselves in his pudgy body. United States Senator Charles S. Deneen hurried home from Washington, and the fight was on.

Esposito's death was of tremendous significance. He was a leader in the Deneen faction of the Republican party, opposing the American Firsters. In the old Nineteenth Ward—now the Twenty-fifth—the Italian district, he was by way of being a political, social and business institution. "Dimey," they called him. His name was a household word. No Christmas, no wedding, no funeral, no saint's day, was complete without Dimey's presence. In the Christmas holidays he gave his annual party and played Santa Claus for the poor children. He was the ward's godfather.

The result was apparent at election time. Like his friend, Big Jim Colosimo, and like Mike Merlo, Esposito, in the vernacular of the ward heeler, was a sheepherder; he delivered votes.

Too shrewd to become openly involved in the bootleg war, he operated always with the factor of safety in mind. He was associated with the Gennas before their break with Capone; he sold sugar to the big alky-cooking syndicate in Melrose Park, a suburb northwest of Cicero; in Chicago Heights, Capone territory, he owned the Milano cafe, where dry agents found a 1000-gallon still, 3500 gallons of alcohol, 15 barrels of wine and two barrels of whiskey.

His brother-in-law, John Tullio, a booze runner for Ralph Sheldon of the Capone South Side outfit, was taken for a ride and his body left in a car in front of Sheldon's home, in one of the most atrocious reprisals of the bootleg war. Another brother-in-law, Philip Leonetti, was shot to death in his cigar store. These facts will suffice to acquaint the reader with Esposito's political and business background.

THE social side of him was unique. He had a passion for festal entertainings. For 29 years his annual St. Joseph's day parties were the outstanding events of the Nineteenth Ward. It was as a dinner host, however, that he excelled. He presided over the banquet in February of 1925 to celebrate Mr. Deneen's election to the United States Senate. It was given in the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel. More than 1500 guests, including all the precinct captains and their families, assembled, and Mr. Deneen was presented with a bronze bust of the things you intend to do in the future, and can do well.

The friendship and alliance of Senator Deneen—a parliamentarian dry who voted for the Jones five-and-ten law with Esposito provided another of the anomalies of prohibition. It was the anomalous friendship of the anomalous.

Deneen was present in November of 1925 at the christening party for Esposito's son, Charles Anthony, who was named for him. It was held at the Bella Napoli cafe, from which the Federal padlock had been removed a twelve-month previously.

Esposito was perhaps the most powerful of his kind in Chicago. In 1923, after he had been fined for violating the prohibition laws, he went to Italy—his first and only journey to the land of his birth. Arrived at Teramo, in the Dalmatian, in 1924, the angels carried it across the Adriatic to a wood near Recanti, in the province of Ancona, Italy; either from this wood (laurel) or from its progeny, Lauretta, the chapel derives its name, sacellum gloriosae virginis in Loreto.

Such the legend. Annually, in the homeland, the time of the Nativity of the Virgin is an occasion of national observance. Thousands of pilgrims journey to Loreto, for devotion and to make their votive offerings. In America, Sept. 8 is the Italian's biggest feast day. An entire week is set aside for celebration. Then the streets of Chicago's melting pot burgeon with unseemly splendor—colored lanterns strung on arches; placards and banners flapping in the breeze proclaiming the spirit of festa; bunting; decking smoke-stained fronts of tenements, stores and shops; masquerade and harlequinade replacing the hard certitudes of life; the city's pent-up seeking escape from reality in illusion.

In the church of San Filippo Beniti at this festive time, the tapers burned before the image of the Virgin, and in a niche beside the altar was the replica of the Santa Casa of the legend. But no one occupied the pews. The place was empty. The buildings of Little Italy were dark.

"Diamond Joe" Esposito and Tony Lombardo, Powerful Figures in Chicago's Underworld, Fall Before the Bullets of Enemies as the Bootleg War Continues.

—By FRED D. PASLEY—

A DETERMINED contest was being waged by the America Firsters for that post, their candidate being Joseph P. Savage, a former assistant State's Attorney.

"But," remonstrated Esposito's friends, "you ought to go down to that farm of yours (near Cedar Lake, Ind.) and raise chickens for a while."

He shook his head. He had a two-man bodyguard, the brothers Ralph and Joe Varchetti. He wasn't afraid. In the evening he visited his headquarters, the Esposito National Republican Club, at 2115 West Taylor street, a few blocks from his home, at 800 South Oakley boulevard. He left the club with the Varchettis.

To quote verbatim from Ralph Varchetti's testimony at the inquest: "We went back to the drug store, and after staying about 15 minutes, Dimey said, 'Let's go home,' and we started off, putting him between us."

"We met a woman on the way—she was an election clerk, and Dimey told her to do what she could in the primary to win him votes—and we stopped for a few minutes while he talked to her. Then we went along Oakley, and when he got about to 810 South Oakley we heard a shot. I thought it was a blowout."

Then there were more shots, and Joe says "my God!" and I dropped the sidewalk and lay flat, with my face in the dirt. I could see Dimey twisting and sinking to the sidewalk. The shots came from a car in front of Sheldon's home, in one of the most atrocious reprisals of the bootleg war.

When the firing stopped a second, I looked up and they fired again. I dropped flat, and this time I was hit. I got up and tried to make him go. He was gone.

Only meager descriptions were forthcoming from the Varchettis—three men in an automobile; they didn't recognize them; they couldn't identify them; they didn't know the make of car. The only clues were two sawed-off double-barreled shotguns and a revolver, which the assassins tossed out as they sped away.

FATHER LOUIS GIANBASTIANI was taking a notice on the door of the church of San Filippo Beniti, September had come round again, bringing the joyous and hallowed festival of Our Lady's feast, the commemoration of the legend of the holy house of Nazareth, in which Mary was born, received the annunciation, and lived during the childhood of Jesus. After his ascension, it was consigned to a chapel by the apostles and used for worship until the fall of the kingdom of Jerusalem. Threatened by angels through the air and delivered to the hands of the angels, it was carried to the land of his birth. Arrived at Teramo, in the Dalmatian, in 1924, the angels carried it across the Adriatic to a wood near Recanti, in the province of Ancona, Italy; either from this wood (laurel) or from its progeny, Lauretta, the chapel derives its name, sacellum gloriosae virginis in Loreto.

The Air Pony

THE Little Black Clock had turned the time ahead and had invited John and Peggy to go up to see a very fine place in the air that a man had built for himself and his family.

It was like one of those great dirigibles that John and Peggy had seen—so large that it had grounds built on its great platform, and there it stayed so the family could come and live in it from time to time.

There was a swimming pool, as well as all sorts of places where games could be played, and the children of this man had a wonderful time.

Sometimes their friends came up to visit them, but one day—the day when the Little Black Clock took John and Peggy to see the place—the man's youngest boy was having a birthday.

What do you suppose John and Peggy saw as they arrived at that place up in the air?

They saw the landing of a plane carrying a dear little pony.

The pony was helped out of the plane, and at once had some oats and sugar that had been brought with him.

The little boy was delighted with his birthday present, and, as the plane was so large that it seemed as though they were down on the earth, the pony did not mind at all.

The little boy and his friends did not know how to ride at first, but soon learned, and then John and Peggy met the little boy and rode too.

The boy admired the way John and Peggy handled the pony. He was more used to driving a plane. But as they were on their way home Peggy kept saying, "It does seem queer to think of a pony up in the air."

Sandpaper on the Range.

Rub the kitchen range with fine sandpaper, then rub it briskly with newspaper. This will keep the stove smooth and clean and if done just before blacking it, the stove will keep black much longer. Use soap suds to soften the blacking and you will produce a higher gloss in less time.

Big Business Girl
by one of them

CHAPTER TWENTY.

THE excitement at having achieved real recognition of her business abilities carried over until Wednesday. Fortunately Uncle Jerry was out of town. It kept her from having to explain about Johnny. Mac hadn't even talked to him since Sunday. She had left word at home and at the office that she was out to Mr. Goodman. She didn't want to be stirred up by anything just now.

She had to think about Johnny and herself and what she was going to do about the misalliance. She had to think, too, about R. J. and herself and what she was going to do about giving up her job. One problem had no bearing on the other in her mind. She just didn't want to see Johnny or hear his voice until she knew the answers. Fortunately for her, too, R. J. had gone out of town by the time she had returned to the office Monday and had left a note that he would see her today.

She looked forward to this evening, knowing that she was ready to face what she was ready to face. She had never been so happy, as much as hurting Johnny was hurting her.

She had worked furiously Monday afternoon and all day Tuesday, and had even celebrated Monday evening with Jamieson, Johnny's old rival. They had driven out to see Harlow to a late dinner at the dining table, in the gay little Rustic Club in the beach. She hadn't told Jamieson what it was all about, and she had been casual about Johnny when Jamieson wanted to know about the Villa Carolina. Jamieson was suspicious.

It looked to him as though Mac was riding on the crest of Johnny's return. But Mac had put her face up to him when they danced and had looked at him through her fingers. And he had enjoyed that ride back with Mac close to him, very vibrant and full of sophisticated and knowing chatter.

He wondered if he could ever get used to this sort of life, riding along the North Shore, through wooded gulches, with the scent of fern and moss and leaf pouring into them; the black glass lake and a tremendous moon which one associated with tropical places rather than Northern Illinois. But Mac was an odd girl—easily bored with the amusement of other people's misadventures. He didn't think she would ever get used to this.

Mac's confidence began to slip back like a cooling wave. R. J. sat on the corner of her desk and smiled down at her. "I've never known anyone like you—any girl with your drive and ambition and slant on life, combined with charm. Do you believe now that you misunderstood me?"

Mac gave him her hand. There was warmth there—kindness and friendship and the same current she had felt Saturday night in his garden.

"You're upset about this boy, aren't you?"

"I'm ashamed of him for making a scene in the office," Mac apologized.

"You're upset about him, too. You don't know what to do about him, do you?"

"Yes, I do," Mac looked ahead at the hard wall. "I'm going to leave him."

"I don't want to give you any advice, my child," R. J.'s eyes were so wise and keen and understanding. "But if I were you, I wouldn't let anything stop me from doing exactly as I pleased."

"I wouldn't let anything stop me from doing exactly as I pleased," R. J. said. "I'm not unhappy over anything. You are young enough to make of life a perfect thing. I think young marriages are usually a mistake. Believe me, I know." Mac could see that he was implying that he, too, had made a mess of marriage.

"I think you're a pretty big person and that you have a big future, and I know you'll excuse me for saying it, now that you've confessed your intentions concerning Goodman—you ought to be traveling with more experienced men—men who can give you something socially and mentally—not unstable youngsters. I think there is a lot in you that can be brought out by a different type of man. You see, I have been thinking about you a lot since Saturday night. I like you, Claire."

His smile was intimate, eager. Mac saw him again as she had seen him at his party—a man of force and charm, physically attractive, obviously successful and very sure of himself, with other men, but only nicely hopeful so far as women were concerned. A man of taste. She had meant to tell him about Mr. Thorne, but she couldn't now.

When he went out of her little office she had promised to go to dinner with him.

She had to make up her mind before next Monday about leaving her. Why, she thought suddenly, she didn't want to leave here at all. She wanted to stay, to be near this charming person. Perhaps after all he would find a way to make the work interesting and worth while. She wanted to stay now. She searched her mind for reasons. And she found that they had nothing to do with reality.

Mac's brain was still working. This was a crisis in her career; she knew she had to make up her mind now whether she was going to be a woman or a business woman.

"Trouble?" R. J. questioned. He said it so kindly that tears came

How Chaplin Made His Non-Talking Film Hit

HOLLYWOOD, March 21. (AP)—The theater-going world believes it is seeing Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights."

Not by a long, long shot. It is seeing just a little slice or two culled from one of the most enormous aggregations of comedy film ever made in Hollywood—scenes that were made then discarded virtually overnight.

"City Lights," as shown in the theaters, runs 3092 linear feet. A trifle longer than most screen stories. But here in the Chaplin studio vaults, to be consigned some day to flames, are 619,907 feet of the original film, just as carefully made as those sequences which went out under the title name. Six hundred and twenty-eight thousand film feet "shot" by two cameras and a mere eight thousand retained! The balance goes to the incinerator, worth only the amount of silver which will be recited from its ashes.

"Unjustifiable waste!" financiers will exclaim. "For satisfaction!" Chaplin will reply.

And he will add that he releases no picture until every scene, every sequence, every action has met with his unqualified approval. Then, once given, he stands back of it. He never has turned out a production that was a "flop."

THE 3092 feet of "City Lights" cost Chaplin $1,500,000 and two years of work. His picture, "The Circus," was completed in November, 1927. In December he was lining up his next production. The first scene in "City Lights" was made Dec. 27, 1928. The last one, Oct. 23, 1929. Two years of making and "junking." And most of it "junking."

"Throw it to the lions!" Chaplin would exclaim after a sequence on which he and the company had worked for weeks was shown in his private projection room. If it did not please him, then he would go to work on another. Two weeks, three weeks, even 10 weeks would go by. Again a product was ready for review. Again it might not meet his approval.

"Nixie," it was marked, and off it went to the storage vaults.

Then, while other principals in the company waited, Chaplin stayed away—a week, possibly two weeks. Salaries went on just the same. Costs mounted. It made no difference. Presently he was back enthused with an idea. Orders would be issued to carpenters, painters, electricians and property-men. A "set" would be built as quickly as possible, commensurate with accuracy, a new sequence started.

That's how he works.

BETWEEN 25 and 30 complete scenes or ideas were filmed in their entirety for "City Lights" and then discarded. They did not "pan out" or "jell" to suit Chaplin. So off to the ash-can they were carted.

There was one sequence in which 300 "extras" were called. This was for a street scene a block or two long. Touring buses crowded with passengers were regulated and building fronts erected past which hurrying pedestrians would pass. Holes were cut in the tall board fence surrounding the studio lot so these "pedestrians" might emerge beyond the camera lines. (Chaplin's studio lot is less than two blocks square.)

These 300 "extras" worked for days, but not a foot of the sequence got into the picture. The surety companies would have catalogued it "Total loss; no insurance."

A sequence was made showing Chaplin standing on a sidewalk grating over a basement. At his feet lay a small stick of wood. Idling away time, he was endeavoring with his trick cane to push that bit of wood through the grating.

His present trip to Europe resulted. He plans continuing around the world, eventually sailing from Tokyo for California.

During the making of "City Lights," 1500 "still" pictures of stage or street scenes were taken. Six hundred copies of the finished film were made for the first issue to be used throughout America and more now are being printed for use in foreign countries.

Chaplin has said repeatedly and emphatically that he never will make a "talkie," although he will use sound.

"It would be the mistake of my life," he explained, "to try and place words in the mouth of my character. And at the present stage of the game I do not intend to change my screen personality because of a fad. In fact, so long as I portray the character that has been mine since the beginning of my career before the camera, no words will ever be spoken by him."

But he did not say he might not whistle a bit, if he ever swallows a whistle. Incidentally, that "gag" in "City Lights" was purely his own and many see in it another jibe at sound pictures. Chaplin is subtle.

The Great Comedian Built Up "City Lights" Bit by Bit—Threw Away a Fortune in Film That Did Not Meet His Approval After It Had Been Taken.

ing. A woman stopped, curiously wondering what in the world he was doing. Another paused to watch his efforts, then another and another. Before long a crowd had gathered intent on seeing the little man punching away with his cane at a small piece of wood which just wouldn't slide through the little iron bars.

In reality, the whole thing was a study in human psychology. The crowd gathered to watch, just as a crowd gathers to see what the man will get from the little pile of ashes he is so carefully raking through in the gutter. The longer they saw Chaplin jabbing at that piece of wood, trying to make it drop through, the funnier it seemed. Or the sillier it seemed. Everyone was grinning at his efforts. Chaplin was so intent on his endeavor he did not notice that he was being surrounded by an interested throng. When he did discover it, he gave his derby hat, one of those comical little tips and started edging away. Presently he was speeding, with his big shoes, heel first, pounding.

Not a foot of that sequence was used in "City Lights."

THE comedian uses no scenario or manuscript in making his pictures. He selects a theme and from it envisions the odd things that might happen. There must be humor or a touch of pathos in all the incidents; they must excite human interest and be believable. This system probably was best exemplified by the sequences in "The Kid," his greatest picture, and by events in "The Circus." In "City Lights" he endeavored to portray what might happen if a poor, homeless, hungry wanderer of the streets stopped a millionaire from drowning himself and, in turn, was taken into the millionaire's world, though socially unfitted. About this idea, or problem, or theme, he wove his situations. He also sought to show that a blind girl selling flowers at a street corner might be beautiful in character with a woman's tender soul and therefore really one of a city's "lights."

Making this picture took its toll of Chaplin's strength. During its production he aged perceptibly. The tinge of gray at his temples crept toward the crown. The lines in his face deepened. Thinking, thinking, thinking—planning, studying, envisioning, devising, he got little rest. All his boundless energy was directed upon the one object. He put in eight weeks making the prize fight sequence of "City Lights," before he had it where he wanted it. After repeated trials by others, he, with his own voice, made the quick-quack-quack burlesque on the "talkies," which opens the production. At 3 o'clock one morning while making the falling-off-the-dock scenes, Henry Clive, celebrated artist who had been cast in the millionaire's role, refused to go into the water because it was cold. Chaplin "fired" him on the spot and substituted another. When the production was completed last October, Chaplin turned to one of his associates and said wearily: "I'm tired. I must go away."

Focal Infections

DURING the past 20 years a great deal has been written on focal infections.

Some have held these infections responsible for an extremely wide variety of ailments. Others have tended to underestimate their importance.

Accumulated medical experience has, however, served to establish a rational attitude toward focal infections. Certain it is that the reality of focal infections, and their ability to be of a source of disease in remote parts of the body have been established beyond question.

By a focus of infection is meant a place where an abscess has formed, liberating germs, toxins or both into the blood stream. Many different kinds of germs may cause such infection, which may be in different parts of the body.

The most common places in the body where a focus of infection may develop are the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder and prostate. But practically any portion of the body subject to infection may also become a focus of infection.

A focus of infection may injure remote parts or organs of the body by giving off into the blood or lymph stream bunches of germs or poisonous products of germ activity.

These germs or poisons may travel far and wide in the body and injure the kidneys, heart, brain, bones, etc.

Focal infections may thus give rise to arthritis or inflammation of joints, heart disease in different forms, such as endocarditis, that is, an inflammation of the inner lining of the heart; myocarditis, involving the musculature of the heart; pericarditis, involving the outer linings of the heart.

Nephritis may result from a focus of infection, and various forms of neurologic or nerve pains may also be due to the same source.

"COLOR can magnetize. It can attract. Chosen rightly, it can lift you to radiant beauty. Just remember these rules:

"Study your type—choose your colors—and then take care to keep them perfect!"

"Never let colors fade. When a color is new it has a thrilling, 'live' quality that makes

YOU alive, and gives you a radiant, conquering charm. Faded, it becomes dead and listless and makes you seem so, too. Also, it may even become actually the WRONG shade for you.

HOOVER PRAISES PORTO RICO'S RISE IN GENERATION AS FINE ACHIEVEMENT

Big Problem, However,
That of Population In-

Than Means of Livilihood, President Says.

By the Associated Press.
SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 24.—The rise of Porto Rico, in a single generation, "from stagnation to a high place in the march of progress," President Hoover told a large crowd in front of the island's new $3,000,000 Capitol building today, constitutes "a magnificent example of what a capable and intelligent people may accomplish under free institutions."

"I know of no finer achievement," he added, "than that of the people of this island." He joined the praise of the island's progress with an acknowledgment of "the grave problems" confronting it. One of these, he said, was the danger of the population increasing more rapidly than the means of livelihood furnished by available industry.

On his arrival the President was taken first to the Senate chamber in the Capitol. The crowd had filled every available inch of room. The President was given a tremendous ovation. After a speech of welcome by Luis Morales, president of the Senate, a testimonial of affection was presented to Mr. Hoover by the speaker of the House of Representatives.

Expression of Gratitude. The President thanked the Senators briefly. "I cannot tell you how grateful I am," he said, "to have so grateful my fellow countrymen on the mainland are, for this reception."

Mr. Hoover, accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretaries Hurley and Wilbur and Private Secretary Ritchie, then adjourned to a platform outside the building to reply to the speeches. Here, under a great throng in the bright sunlight, the President was introduced by Gov. Roosevelt in Spanish. A public address system carried the President's words to the outer fringes of the crowd. The throng, which had gathered in the harbor of San Juan, where ships were flying many flags in honor of his visit. As the sun grew warmer, hundreds of multicolored parasols were raised, adding color to the crowd below the speaker's stand.

Text of President's Address.
The text of the President's address to the Legislature follows:
"Gentlemen of the Legislature,
my fellow-American citizens:
"I am grateful for the courtesy and generosity of the reception which I have received in Porto Rico. It is, indeed, a great pleasure for me to be here and to have this opportunity of meeting you personally.

"Ever since I became President of the United States, I have wished to visit this part of the Union and have an opportunity of that fuller acquaintance with your problems and your people which is proper to the time at my disposal is unfortunately too limited to visit many of your communities and inspect all of their various activities and institutions. I wish it were possible to do so. I should also like to see more of the beauties and resources of the island of which you are so justly proud.

"I want you to realize that it is not lack of interest or of good will on my part which prevents my extended visit and the making of a larger acquaintance, but simply the limitations of other responsibilities.

Devotion and Progress.

"Though I come for the first time to Porto Rico, my contact with the island and my opinion of her people do not date merely from the time when I assumed the position of President. More than a decade ago, as Food Administrator during the troublous times of the war, I came to know Porto Ricans, to become acquainted with their abilities, and, above all, to realize their splendid devotion to our country in time of national danger.

"Our nation is proud of the progress made by the people of
